

Chloe Davis Says She Killed Mother, Brother, but Tales Vary

Girl, 11, Interrupts Her Questioners, Asks For Bottled Beer and Pie; Is Flippant

'Buck Up, Dad'

'Don't Let It Get You Down,' She Advises Her Father

Los Angeles, April 5 (AP)—Chloe Davis, "angelic-faced" 11-year-old described by an amazed psychiatrist as "the cruellest-blooded, coolest individual I ever met," told police today with a mixture of slang that she beat to death her mother and baby brother. She insisted, however, that the fatal bludgeoning of two younger sisters was done previously by the mother.

Interrupting only to demand bottled beer and lemon pie, the 80-pound, strong-armed girl led questioning officers through conflicting versions during which she referred to her grocery manager father as "nuts" and her anemic mother as a believer in "demons."

Police Captain Edgar Edwards expressed belief that the girl, an avid book reader with the imaginative mind of a 16-year-old, alone was responsible for the deaths of Mrs. Lolita Bjorkman Davis, 36, Daphne, 10, Deborah Anne, 7, and Marquis (Mark) 3, in the blood-spotted Davis home in southwest Los Angeles yesterday.

The girl's latest story was that her mother killed the little girls, then tried to burn herself on a mattress but failed and Chloe then "conked" her mother with a claw hammer as the mother's request. After that, the girl said, she beat her moaning brother to death.

Held on Suspicion
The flippant, sixth-grade youngster was held on suspicion of murder after she unhesitatingly led officers through the blood-spattered rooms.

Captain Edwards said he anticipated an early solution of the brutal death drama, with helpful questioning of the girl by her father, Barton Davis, 51, who moved here with his family five years ago from Grand Rapids, Mich.

Once during the questioning, the father broke down and sobbed "Oh, my poor baby!" to which Chloe replied: "Buck up, dad. Don't let it get you down."

Dr. Paul de River, police psychiatrist, after questioning Chloe described her as above average intelligence and said he considered her "the cruellest-blooded, coolest individual I ever met."

Veteran police officers, accustomed to questioning hardened criminals, said they were astonished by the imperturbable demeanor of the girl, who was described by one police matron as having "a face like an angel's."

Little Emotion
"She stood up well for one of a family struck by such a crime," said Dr. River. She showed little emotion.

"Chloe is a precocious youngster. She acts like a girl of 15 or 16 years of age. She is a child of a great deal of imagination and is well read."

"As to her guilt or innocence, I cannot say. She told me she was sure she had not committed the murders."

After being questioned for awhile, Chloe sat down with Captain Edwards and ate a hearty steak dinner. When he refused to order her a bottle of beer, she snapped.

"Mother and I split a bottle a couple of days ago."

Captain Edwards said the fair-haired, blue-eyed Chloe first told him calmly and with no sign of tears that her mother, of medium height and build, killed the three children with the hammer, saying that "demons" were after her.

Then at the request of her mother, Chloe said, she took the weapon and "conked" her about 50 times on the head and body until the hammer head broke off the handle, then beat her with the handle "until she stopped breathing."

Repeated questioning of the girl and subsequent development of the discrepancies, however, led Edwards to conclude, he said, that Chloe awakened while her mother was still in bed; went to the kitchen where Marquis and Daphne were playing and fatally bludgeoned them; then encountered her mother in the hallway, struck her down with the hammer and beat her to death.

Palms of Hands Blistered
Captain Edwards said the palms of Chloe's hands were blistered, apparently from considerable use of the hammer.

Continuing his reconstruction of the tragedy, Edwards said: "Chloe then went into the bathroom and killed Ann. In an attempt to disguise the whole affair,"

Three Are Dead in Hammer Slaying

Police Captain Edgar Edwards said 11-year-old Chloe Davis (second from left) had admitted that she smashed the skull of her 3-year-old brother, Marquis, (left) to "quieten him" and then beat her 36-year-old mother to death with a hammer in their Los Angeles home. Chloe denied she struck her two sisters, Daphne, 10, (second from right) and Deborah, 7, (right) who also were found dead of hammer wounds. The girl first told police that her mother had killed the other children, then set herself afire and commanded Chloe to hit her with the hammer.

Stassen Says He Favors Delegation Not Instructed

Makes Statement After Report He Is in Favor of Dewey; Himself Possible Keynote

Washington, April 5 (AP)—Reports in the capital that Governor Harold E. Stassen hoped to influence Minnesota's Republican delegation to support Thomas E. Dewey for the presidential nomination brought forth a statement from Stassen today that, on the contrary, he favors an uninstructed delegation.

Stassen said at St. Paul that "it is my present position" that the Minnesota state convention should determine the course of Republican delegates.

Word circulating here that Stassen was getting behind the New York prosecutor for the nomination had surprised some Republicans. They said that Roy Dunn, Minnesota party chairman, had been working for the selection of an uninstructed delegation at the state convention May 23.

The 32-year-old governor has been mentioned as a possible "keynote" at the national convention. For that reason some politicians have been inclined to think he might seek to preserve a neutral attitude, at least publicly.

If Stassen chose to announce support for Dewey, this might interfere with recent plans put forward by Dunn for eight or nine independent states to choose uninstructed delegations.

Leaders of that move hoped by unified action to enhance their state's influence not only in the selection of the party standard bearer but in obtaining a farm plank conforming to their views.

Given Minnesota's backing, Dewey would be assured of a sizable bloc of midwestern votes, in addition to the support he expects from an uninstructed New York delegation regarded as

Nothing to It Census Getting Tamer

Chicago, April 5 (AP)—Questions asked by the 1940 census takers were found by a University of Chicago professor today to be relatively innocuous.

Completing a historical survey of 150 years of census-taking in the United States, Dr. Wayne McMillen, professor of social service administration, made known that in 1850 the populace was asked: "Are you deaf, dumb, blind, insane, idiotic, a pauper or a convict?"

In 1890, the educator said, the enumerator asked about diseases or other afflictions in the family, military service and farm ownership.

Dr. McMillen said that the first census, in 1790, sought only to tabulate the number of free and slave inhabitants for the purpose of apportioning congressional representation and taxation.

Other research at the University of Chicago disclosed that in a business and industrial survey a few years after the turn of this century women were asked how many petticoats they wore.

Tokyo Responsible U. S. Warning Says

Eagle Eye Is Cast Upon Nanking Ruler, but Japan Must Answer

Washington, April 5 (AP)—United States officials are watching the Japanese-sponsored government of Wang Ching-Wei at Nanking with an eagle eye, determined to hold Tokyo rather than Nanking responsible for any action which infringes on American rights.

If Stassen chose to announce support for Dewey, this might interfere with recent plans put forward by Dunn for eight or nine independent states to choose uninstructed delegations.

Kennedy Says He Will Prove Group Planned Uprising

Counsel Emphasizes Trial Not Against Christian Front, Any Race or Any Religion

New York, April 5 (AP)—Opening the government's case against 17 men charged with seditious conspiracy, United States Attorney Harold M. Kennedy said today he would prove they did "conspire, plot and scheme to overthrow the government by force, to oppose it by force and to take its property by force."

Kennedy emphasized to the federal court jury of 11 men and one woman that "the Christian Front is not on trial, neither is race nor religion on trial." Some of the defendants were said by J. Edgar Hoover, FBI chief, to be affiliated with a Christian Front movement.

Leo Healy, lawyer for 11 of the 17, agreed that the Christian Front was not on trial, but added that "a great deal will be heard about three fronts—the Christian Front, the Jewish Front and the Communist Front."

Healy contended that the government's case was based on the "evidence of provocateurs in the employ of the Communist government of Russia and the Communist party of New York."

The tedious selection of the jury, headed by Mrs. Helen R. Titus, attractive Brooklyn housewife, was completed yesterday after Federal Judge Marcus B. Campbell examined each of the prospective jurors as to their beliefs, friendships, connections and personal activities.

The court's inquiry was based on questions suggested jointly by the government and the defense.

Each juror was asked whether he belonged to: The Christian Front, national guard, any military organization, any opposed to any group because of race, color or creed, the communist party, or the American Labor Party.

The jurors also were questioned as to their newspaper and magazine reading habits and their favorite radio programs.

Allies May Form New Parliament

Permanent Body Said to Be Plan to Give Invulnerable Front for Security

Warfront Restless

Apparent Inaction Is Order in Battle Area in Europe

(By The Associated Press)

An uneasy pall of apparent inaction hung over Europe's war today.

The French and Germans reported the usual patrol skirmishes on the western front, the Germans saying about 15 French were killed, while the French mentioned four artillery casualties.

On the diplomatic front the quiet was more notable.

There was talk in London of a possible joint British and French parliament aimed at forming an empire partnership so strong that "no aggressor would dare challenge it."

Britain prepared an organization to sell British products in southeastern Europe and to buy up goods which Germany might otherwise get—while the House of Commons looked forward to a secret debate next Thursday on blockade methods.

Failure Is Reported

Germany was reported to have failed in an attempt to get Yugoslavia to guard German merchant ships carrying Yugoslav bauxite through the Adriatic. The ore, from which aluminum is obtained, is not regarded by Yugoslavia as war material, and official sources previously had said she would sanction its shipment through territorial waters.

A large section of the British public was more occupied with the first wartime running of the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree today than with news of the war. The French were reported preoccupied with their campaign against Communism. The government was understood to be considering a decree to make dissemination of Communist propaganda a treasonable offense punishable by death.

The British liner Mauretania, presumably bound for Australia or New Zealand for possible use as a troop ship, was expected to leave Honolulu after a stop for fuel and water.

Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles described as "fantastic nonsense" German assertions that in Paris he had discussed any French plans to "whittle down" Germany after the war.

Authorized German sources commented that in that case Welles must have been the victim of a French propaganda trick, referring to a photograph of Welles and the present French Premier Paul Reynaud beside a map on which the Germans said a reduced Germany was portrayed.

In line with the American neutrality policies, shipping men in Genoa, Italy, said the United States government had directed American export liners to cease calling at Marseille, France. Sailing lists indicated vessels of the line had been stopping there on westbound voyages.

United States officials also were keeping eagle eyes on the Japanese-sponsored government of Wang Ching-Wei in occupied Chinese territory. They are determined to hold Tokyo responsible for any action which might infringe on American rights.

Hoff's Condition Given As 'Poor' at Hospital

Melvin Hoff, who was critically injured Wednesday when a town of Saugerties truck operated by Oscar Snyder backed over Hoff at the Centerville stone crusher, was reported as "poor" today at the Kingston Hospital.

Hoff suffered a broken right leg and broken pelvis Wednesday when he was knocked down and run over. Hoff with Snyder had gone to the quarry for a load of stone and alighted from the truck and walked behind the vehicle as it was backed up. In some manner Hoff was struck down and before Snyder knew of his plight the truck had backed over the body of the truck helper.

Roosevelt Thinks Bill Limitation Would Work Harm

President Tells Press Conference That Proposed Amendment Is Bad for U. S. Trade

Washington, April 5 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today he believed it would be very harmful to the nation if the bill to extend the reciprocal trade treaty act were limited to one year.

The Chief Executive spoke at a press conference shortly after it was reported on excellent authority that Vice President Garner was supporting an amendment to limit extension of the administration's trade agreements program to one year.

Legislation near final Senate action already approved by the House, would extend the program for three years from June 12.

Mr. Roosevelt said it was not good for the country to have a scrap over tariffs coming up every year. Such a scrap, he said, is essentially what is involved in discussions in Congress of the trade treaty act.

In the first year of whatever administration comes in in 1941, he said, it would be very harmful to the whole United States to have to bring up the trade treaty issue again. That was true, he declared, whether it would be a Republican or Democratic administration.

Says It Is Unwise Now for U. S. to Develop Discussions Based on Publications

Raps Diplomats

Holt Calls Cromwell and Bullitt Ambassadorial 'Tea Hounds'

Washington, April 5 (AP)—Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the Senate foreign relations committee today rejected fresh suggestions for a congressional inquiry into the Nazi "white book" imputations that American diplomats helped pave the way for Europe's war.

"It is obviously unwise," he said, "with the United States enjoying such a peaceful situation at home, to make unauthentic publications of belligerent powers the subject of violent discussions in our own country."

The war's ramifications, however, continued to be a provocative topic in the capital.

Senator Holt (D-W Va.) flung the epithet "tea hounds" at James H. R. Cromwell, United States minister to Canada, and William C. Bullitt, ambassador to France.

The Senate audit committee promised speedy consideration of a request for funds to finance the sweeping investigation of all war propaganda proposed by Senator Clark (D-Mo.).

The "white book" inquiry recommendation was made yesterday by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), after saying he accepted "at face value" the denials of Bullitt and the state department that the Nazi documents were authentic.

Would Gain Nothing
Pittman commented that, in his opinion, an investigation would accomplish nothing but arouse feeling among citizens whose forebears came from belligerent nations.

Vandenberg voiced willingness to have the "white book" allegations considered by the projected Clark propaganda inquiry, if it is authorized by the Senate. He said it should determine whether the German publication was "sheer propaganda."

A Senate discussion of belligerent propaganda provided the springboard yesterday for caustic remarks which Senator Holt fired at Cromwell and Bullitt, after saying he accepted "at face value" the denials of Bullitt and the state department that the Nazi documents were authentic.

Clark referred to Cromwell as "a playboy ambassador" and said he should resign "if he had any self respect."

The Nazi statement about Undersecretary Welles was based on a photograph taken during his recent fact-finding trip to Europe.

The picture showed Welles conferring with French Premier Reynaud (then finance minister) in front of a large map of Europe.

The map, Berlin claimed, revealed allied plans for the shrunken frontiers of post-war Germany. Welles was guilty of "bad taste," a German spokesman said, in posing before it.

Welles, in his reply, stated: "At no time during the course of my interviews in Paris or in any other capital I visited was any reference made to any maps I never even looked at in my map which may have been in M. Reynaud's office."

Lepke Gets 30 Years

New York, April 5 (AP)—Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, notorious racketeer, today was sentenced to 30 years to life in state prison for extortion in the bakery and trucking rackets. General Sessions Judge John F. Tamm directed that the sentence should begin after Buchalter had served a 14-year sentence recently imposed in federal court for conspiracy to violate the narcotics laws. Max Silberman and his son, Harold, convicted with Lepke, were sentenced by Judge Freschi to 20 to 30 and 3 to 6 years, respectively.

Presbyterian Group Holds Annual Church Election

At the annual congregational meeting of the First Presbyterian Church last night the following persons were elected to the office of trustee: Duane Forman, Thomas Lebert and Mrs. Hazel Pirie, each for a term of three years.

Elected to the office of ruling elder for three years were: Kenneth Ayers, Irving Smith (whose father, Nelson R. Smith, had for many years been a ruling elder), and Newton Van Etten, the latter re-elected. Mr. Ayers and Mr. Smith will be ordained and, with Mr. Van Etten, installed to the office during the church service of Sunday morning, April 14, when the Lord's Supper will be celebrated.

Also elected to the office of deacon were: Edward Finch, John Gordon Pirie and Harford Shultis, Jr., the latter re-elected.

Financial reports were presented from organization treasurers. Robert C. Murray, church treasurer, in his report for the board of trustees, stated that the receipts through his office had made a substantial gain over the previous year, and also that the indebtedness had been considerably reduced.

The pastor, the Rev. William J. McVey, moderated the meeting, and Ward B. Tongue was the clerk.

Stocks Continue Gains Thursday

Stocks continued upward Thursday and although gains were not as large as those registered in the average on Wednesday they were made on increased activity, total transactions being 1,990,000 shares, biggest day's volume since September 27. There was especially heavy buying in the railroad and aircraft issues, but the market was a broad one, with 161 different issues making new highs for 1940, while but seven made new lows, one of the latter being O. & W. now in bankruptcy proceedings, which closed at ¼.

Results of the day as shown by the Dow Jones averages showed industrials up .76 point, to 150.41; rails up .54, to 31.86 and utilities ahead 10, to 25.78.

Commodities lagged, with the leading staples markets developing a lower tendency and the Dow Jones commodity index lost .13 point for the day. Cotton turned reactionary in late trading and futures closed up four points to four points lower, with July positions strong. On the other hand wheat futures rallied after an early lower trend and closed up ¼ to ½ cent a bushel at Chicago. Rubber futures showed losses most of the day and closed with net losses of 13 to 20 points. Silk declined sharply and closed 15½ to 16 cents a pound lower.

On rumors of an impending German drive stocks in London weakened Thursday. In Amsterdam American shares were strong, following the lead of Wall street, while domestic shares were higher in quiet trading. Paris Bourse rallied from its setback of Wednesday.

The same principles apply in caring for a serious illness or for the common cold that prevails in late winter and early spring, says Mary Peabody, registered nurse and staff member of the New York state college of home economics.

Stocks Continue Gains Thursday

The going was far from easy, however, and small minus signs were plentiful throughout. Irregularity developed after a fast opening and the pace slowed appreciably. Gains were in the majority near the final hour.

The revival of Wall Street's political hopes, combined with the growing belief business and industry will turn around and resume the forward march in the next several weeks, provided the principal bullish influence, brokers said. At that, traders who rode the sharp two-day rally inclined to lighten commitments as a cautionary week-end measure.

Bonds were selectively improved and commodities did better after early hesitancy. European markets were steady.

Stocks up at one time or another included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Boeing, Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, Anaconda, Allied Chemical, Standard Brands, Union Bag & Paper, Westinghouse and Western Union.

In front in the curb were National Steel, Car, Dobbekun, Lane-Wells, Bell Aircrafts and Todd Shipyards.

Winston Brings Court Action To Restrain Stock Transfer

Randolph H. Winston of Saugerties has brought an action in Supreme Court for a restraining order which would prevent Elliott and Anna V. Smoak from transferring title to stock which they have in their name in the Saugerties Farms, Inc. The matter was heard at special term Friday before Justice William H. Murray, sitting for the first time at an Ulster county special term since he became a member of the Supreme Court bench of this district.

Mr. Winston, who for some time has conducted the dairy at Saugerties and sold certified Grade A raw milk in Kingston from his Guernsey herd, was represented in court by Charles de la Vergne and Francis Martocci, Judge Paul Fromer appeared for Smoak and his wife.

Mr. de la Vergne asked the court to grant a restraining order to prevent the transfer of stock held by Mr. and Mrs. Smoak pending trial of the action. He contends that the stock was given Mr. and Mrs. Smoak without consideration and contrary to the stock corporation laws. Winston asks that the stock held by Smoak and his wife be surrendered up to the corporation.

In presenting his case, Mr. de la Vergne said that the Saugerties Farms represented a very large investment which was originally made by James O. Winston, Ashokan reservoir contractor, who built up the farms at a cost of near half a million dollars. The good will in the business now conducted by R. H. Winston, son of James O. Winston, he said was of considerable value. In 1936 R. H. Winston took over the farm and the large dairy and in June, 1939, was the owner of the property. Last spring Elliott B. Smoak, who had a dairy at East Jewett, and Mr. Winston entered into a plan for combining their dairies under a corporate name. The contention of Smoak is that Winston agreed to transfer title to the farm and livestock to a corporation and they were to take equal shares of stock. There were certain agreements entered into as to salary, etc., but the Smoak claim is that they acquired title to the stock in a proper manner.

Mr. Winston claims that an agreement was entered into but that Smoak failed to give any consideration for the stock which he has. Winston claims that Smoak's claim that the Smoak herd was to be combined with the Winston herd forms no consideration since the agreement was that the Smoak herd was to be rented to the corporation.

For Winston, Mr. Martocci held that under the stock corporation law stock cannot be given to a party unless there is a consideration either money paid in, for work done or for property transferred to the corporation. He argued that in the present case there was no such consideration and that the contract specifically stated that Smoak was to loan his herd to the corporation and be paid for it. On the theory that there never was a consideration for the stock the plaintiff asks it be returned to the corporation.

Winston and his wife own 100 shares of stock, Smoak and his wife have 100 shares of stock. Paul Fromer for Smoak holds that there was a consideration within the meaning of the law. Justice Murray gave until Monday to submit replying affidavits.

Kingston Is One Of 5 Cities Making No Cut in Service

According to an analysis made by the Citizens' Bureau of Government Research, Inc., six cities out of 23 in New York state, reported both curtailed school services and increased taxes as a direct result of last year's cut in state aid to education. Poughkeepsie was one of the six cities.

While five cities, Kingston, Buffalo, Rochester, Albany and Middletown, reported no curtailment of educational services and no increase in taxes to make up the reduction in state aid, Poughkeepsie, Lackawanna, Auburn, Gloversville, Watertown and Cohoes, experienced both curtailment in services and higher taxes.

Six of the cities, according to the survey, maintained school services, partly at the expense of increasing the real estate tax. These cities were Utica, Schenectady, Elmira, Rome, Johnstown and Newburgh.

The survey covered more than 100 school districts.

Six other cities prevented tax increases but reduced school services, the report said. These were New York, Syracuse, New Rochelle, Binghamton, Lockport and Jamestown.

Mexican Live 'Corpse'

When a medical student at the anatomical institute of the University of Mexico City touched the chest of a supposed dead man with the dissecting knife the "corpse" sat up and yelled, "You fool, you are hurting me." The student almost collapsed as he was Jose Anguinano, a farmer, and that the last he remembered was drinking to celebrate a friend's birthday anniversary. He fell in the street and as he showed no life at a hospital he was taken to the morgue, where he was left 72 hours. Still covered with canvas, he was taken to the institute for dissecting. The revived "corpse" walked unsteadily to the adjoining hospital. The student, suffering a severe attack of nerves, had to be carried to the hospital on a stretcher.

Declining Rate of Births Effects Many Changes

Without the spectacular aspects of war or pestilence, a declining birth rate is producing far-reaching changes in American education, economic life and culture, studies of Northwestern University (Evanston, Ill.) sociologists indicate.

The decline began in the Scandinavian countries around 1875, according to Dr. William L. Bailey, and has gradually spread throughout the western nations. Today the birth rate is about half what it was in 1875 in these countries.

"If present tendencies continue," Dr. Arthur J. Todd, chairman of the sociology department said, "population will become stable some time between 1945 and 1970. This should result in an enriched standard of living for more people."

Children are progressively better off as the birth rate declines, Dr. Todd pointed out. If they are born only when they are really wanted they will be better cared for. Further, the easing of pressure on the school system will permit an emphasis on quality rather than mass production in education.

The declining birth rate is usually accompanied by a decline in the death rate, Dr. David K. Bruner pointed out. When the death rate is cut and the birth rate continues to mount an ominous situation develops. This is happening at present in the Orient.

"Japan is adding 1,000,000 persons a year to a population of 70,000,000," he said. "While this increase may be used in power politics as an excuse for imperialism, actually the people won't migrate and the standard of living must inevitably go down."

Refusal to migrate from crowded areas has been a political problem for centuries, he added. British unemployed, offered an opportunity to settle in Canada, refused to go. Actually, in the early days of colonization of this continent, people were offered a choice between hanging and emigrating and some chose the former.

The three sociologists suggested several different causes for the decline of the birth rate. Dr. Bailey calls it the result of "a fundamental change in our culture—recognition of a distinction between love and parenthood."

All three were agreed that increased urbanization had affected the birth rate, as has the economic depression since 1929.

High-Frequency Sound Disperses City's Smoke

A device to cut the pall of smoke hanging over American cities is being developed by scientists at the United States bureau of mines' new experimental station in Salt Lake City, Utah.

By use of high-frequency sound waves, Hillary W. St. Clair, assistant metallurgist, has developed a system which has been proved for its efficiency in clearing smoke-laden, dust-filled or otherwise contaminated atmosphere.

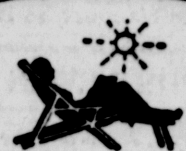

Dr. R. S. Dean, chief engineer of the metallurgical division, who came to Salt Lake City from Washington to take charge of the experimental station, predicted that the day is not far off when St. Clair's device will be marketed commercially at a price low enough to enable every householder and industrial operator to connect one to his chimney.

Heretofore the apparatus for creating the high-frequency sound waves has been too expensive and impractical.

The device that performs the "smoke-busting" act stands about 18 inches high and has a diameter of five or six inches. It resembles a small section of sewer pipe. Inside is a 23-pound cylinder of aluminum. At one end is a loud speaker attached to what is virtually an ordinary radio set.

Trees Retain Sap

"The sap in trees does not go up in the spring and down in the fall, as many persons believe," says H. Basil Wales, of the United Forest Service in Milwaukee, Wis. Wales says that winter-cut logs weigh no less than summer-cut logs, which would not be true if the sap in the tree changed its location in the spring and fall. "In the spring the sap is more active in all species," says Wales. "Any tree will literally 'bleed' if wounded in this period. Sap from the sugar maple is gathered at this time because it is active and flows rapidly. As the season progresses the flow of the sap decreases and at the same time the sugar content goes down."

SKILLED LABOR SCARCITY

One of the phases of the employment situation which seems strange to those who have not studied the problem is that with nearly ten million men out of work there are actual shortages of labor in many lines of industry. This fact, however, is not surprising to those who have given the subject some investigation.

It will be noted that in every instance of a labor shortage, the scarcity is in skilled labor. There is an abundance of unskilled labor but not enough skilled workers in many trades.

Along this line, Congressman Gerald W. Landis, of Indiana, member of the House Labor Committee and a member also of the sub-committee of the committee on "Youth and Unemployment," said, among other things:

"Employers will be interested in the person who can produce a list of skills in which he or she is efficient. Business and industry need people with knowledge and practical experience. There will always be a demand for good skilled labor, such as welders, mechanics, printers, machinists, carpenters, painters, bricklayers, meat cutters, plumbers, automobile drivers, etc. Sewing, cooking and baking are important especially in the cities."

The problem in America, therefore, is to make our boys and girls more skilful in their chosen industry. It is too late to accomplish much for those who have passed the meridian of life, but a great deal along this line can be done for our youth. It will be noted that the youthful criminal is usually one who is competent in no field of honest endeavor, who in short, does not seem to "fit in" our modern economic life. The question, therefore is social as well as industrial, and something ought to be done about it if America is to remain a well-balanced and efficient democracy. Of course home training for the boy and girl by wise and industrious parents, forms the real foundation, but unfortunately all boys and girls do not possess wise and industrious parents. But some substitution can and must be found. The fact that Congress is now studying the problem of "Youth and Unemployment" is an encouraging one.

AIR MARKSMANSHIP

The war seems to grow more and more aerial. And as the air bombing proceeds, interest centers more and more on a certain little gadget about the size of a baby's hand that has been developed for our warplane service and is used exclusively by it. It is an "airplane sight" of miraculous accuracy, said to be enormously better than any similar device possessed by other nations.

A story going around lately says that a pilot using this sight on a swift plane, can drop a bomb on a spot the size of a man's hat, from a height of three miles. Such accuracy is almost inconceivable. It goes far beyond Daniel Boone and his famous rifle.

Britain, or any other belligerent, might be willing to give a battleship or two for that device. But nobody can buy it. And to protect the secret, whenever a warplane carrying one of the magic sights comes down, it is taken apart and the parts are distributed among the flyers so that no unauthorized person could reassemble them for use.

Nevertheless it seems hardly possible that such a treasure could be kept secret long in actual warfare. Let one bombing plane be shot down on hostile territory, and the enemy might get it.

MEXICAN BARRIERS

Mexico, which grows steadily less neighborly, is now extending its unneighborly attitude to Europe. Since the present European war started, tourists and students from the Old World have been barred from Mexico; but capitalists—that is, people with capital—were admitted if they were willing to invest $15,000 or more in Mexican industry. Mexico was very hard up for cash. But on April 1 it was announced that no European capitalists would be allowed to enter Mexico at all.

The explanation is given that this prohibition is intended to keep foreign capitalists from using Mexico as a stepping stone to get into the United States. Perhaps there has been a good deal of that. Under present conditions, European capitalists are no more eager than American capitalists to stay and invest money in a country whose government confiscates foreign investments.

Americans don't understand very clearly what is going on, and sometimes wonder whether the Mexicans themselves do. The country has cut itself off from the friendly cooperation of the United States, and seems headed for Socialism or chaos, or both. Either means a new headache on our southern border.

HAUGHTY HIGHWAYMEN
You find professional pride in the most unlikely places. There was a little hold-up in Cleveland, for instance, the other night.

Two armed men strode into a gas station about closing time. One of them pulled out a pistol and said: "This is a stick-up. How much money have you?"

"Ten dollars of the company's money and fifty cents of my own," replied the attendant. "Not enough!" said the intruder haughtily, and the two of them backed out and vanished.

You can't help feeling a certain respect for such an attitude. Maybe they were making a cool calculation that it wasn't worth the risk, but more likely it was a haughty gesture showing their contempt for such small change and their sympathy for a little fellow. Robin Hood would have understood it.

"There is evidence that the Western Front may soon come to life," said the news broadcaster. Meaning, to death.

The census doesn't seem to hurt so much, after all.

CAUSES OF ASTHMA

A young physician treating a case of asthma made some skin tests and discovered that the patient was allergic or sensitive to animal skin substances—fur, feathers. He suggested therefore that the patient get rid of her pet cat. The patient pointed out that she had had the asthma before she had the cat but nevertheless got rid of the cat. Despite the absence of the cat she had asthmatic attacks although they were not as frequent as when she had the cat. Further skin tests revealed that she was sensitive not only to fur and feathers but to house dust and to eggs. Moving to a new house and avoiding eggs on the diet cut down the number of attacks.

Dr. Richard A. Kern, Philadelphia, states in Medical Clinics of North America:
"Why is there difficulty in completely avoiding the foods causing asthmatic attacks? Because patients—and physicians—avoid the foods in their usual form but fail to avoid the hidden ingredients of foods. How many patients know the score of guises under which egg, milk, and wheat are found? Or that sardines are commonly boiled in peanut oil before packing? Or that ice cream powders contain Karaya gum? Or what is in making powder or Worcester's sauce? Or from what flowers the majority of the honey. The allergic's guiding rule should be: If you do not know what's in it, don't eat it."

It is now believed that asthma is not a disease but a group of symptoms—difficult breathing, pain, coughing up of stringy mucus—due to one or more causes.

Aside from being allergic or sensitive to foods, dust, pollen, fur and feathers, some infection—sinus, teeth, tonsils, bronchial tubes—may be the cause of asthma and also obstructions or deformities in the nose.

The obstructions mentioned by Dr. Kern are (a) deflected septum (the partition between nostrils) is bent over to one side, partly or completely blocking the nostril; (b) large nasal polyps; and (c) sinus disease with its swollen membranes and accumulation of mucus.

The point about asthma is that while epinephrine (adrenalin) injections, inhalations of oxygen, and other measures may relieve the attacks, the majority of cases, the cause of the attacks—allergy, infection, obstruction—can be found and by the proper treatments the attacks can be prevented.

Allergy
Allergy or sensitiveness to various foods or other substances is thought to be one of the commonest causes of asthma. Send today for this interesting booklet by Dr. Barton entitled "Allergy" (No. 106), which explains how asthma, hay fever, eczema, stomach and intestinal upsets, and other symptoms are the result of sensitiveness. Send for your copy to The Bell Library, Post Office Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y., mentioning the Kingston Daily Freeman, and enclosing ten cents to cover cost of mailing and handling.

Teague said he was determined to build a home different and original. "We decided on a stone house and began gathering odd rocks with which to trim it. Friends learned of our hobby and soon we had a garage full of rocks. On summer we ran across a petrified wood dealer in Stephenville, Tex., and decided that a house built of that material would be the answer to our problem."

Teagues still receive stones from persons who have heard of the unique home. They hope some day to receive one from North Carolina.

BABSON ON BUSINESS

ANY PANACEA FOR UNEMPLOYMENT?
Babson Says Democracy Facing Purge Of Some Kind

Washington, D. C., April 5.—Democracy is facing a purging of some kind. For democracy to succeed, it must, in some way, be revised. Otherwise, with those on relief propagating proportionately more rapidly than the employed, with dependent wage workers increasing in percentage more rapidly than those willing to employ others, democracy as now set up is headed for the rocks! Some character and intelligence tests must be discovered and applied to separate the "fit" from the "unfit" when it comes to voting.

My mail is crammed with letters suggesting that people on relief should not be allowed to vote while on relief. Some good citizens believe that government employees should not vote. Others even go so far as to say that only those who work either as wage workers or employers should vote. They point out that the Constitution prohibits the residents of the District of Columbia from voting. As I travel about the country, I find a strong and growing feeling on this franchise question. More and more people believe that unemployment will be solved only as it becomes a disgrace not to work in some capacity.

One Vote Per City
I can't go so far as to believe we should disfranchise anyone. But, I do believe that we must adopt the Unit Voting System on state and national matters. Each citizen should directly vote for the officials of his own town or city as he does now. In state and national elections, however, a city or town should have only one vote. As a man has only one vote irrespective of his wealth, as a congressional district has only one vote, irrespective of its acreage, so a political unit should have only one vote, irrespective of its population. By giving city voters freedom from state interference in running their own affairs, they would quickly agree to such a constitutional amendment.

Another plan and one which is creating much interest in Southern California—our national political laboratory—is the Double Voting System. This gives one vote to every citizen over 21 and two votes to all citizens who pay taxes. This new plan is being pushed hard by conservative elements in those states suffering from "Ham and Eggs" and similar economic diseases. Without doubt, this plan has merits if it can legally be put into effect.

Religious Test Proposed
There are other ideas today. Yesterday, a letter came to me from a group of ministers suggesting a sort of religious test for the voting privilege. Their plan is wholly unorthodox. Protestants, Catholics, and Hebrews—all would get the vote if they were members of the church. Yet, in the same mail I received a letter from a candidate for governor of a near-by state which shows clearly that a church membership test for the vote would not necessarily solve our troubles.

This candidate promises $3 automobile license tags, $40 monthly to the aged, free medical aid, no toll roads nor toll bridges, protection for small business men, "new losing money," higher wages and lower prices. Among his "qualifications" for being governor, this man says he is "an active member of the Methodist Church." With due respect to Methodism, certainly this man's religion does not prevent him from making promises which he knows that he cannot fulfill!

No "Church Front"
In this connection, let me say that Methodism, as a whole, presents a sorry picture at elections. On the first Sunday of November, 1940, over 8,000 Methodist church members will sing the same hymns, read the same Bible, and say the same prayers. On November 5, they will go to the polls and vote—4,000,000 for the Republican candidate and 4,000,000 for the Democratic candidate. Members of most other church denominations will do the same.

As a result, the political leaders at Washington and elsewhere need give no heed or thought to what church members think or want! Notwithstanding this, I still say that the only hope for democracy is a sane spiritual revival. The churches should lead in this revival. They have the potential power, the people, and the plants. They are tax exempt and possess great endowments. They however must again preach the Cross and the necessity of sacrifice. Our churches will never get to first base by imitating popular service luncheon clubs!

"Deals" Not True Answer
The Republicans claim that the administration would only "unshackle" business again, giving it freedom from unnecessary regulation and high taxes, then unemployment would vanish. Yet, business was thus free for over 30 years previous to the panic of 1929—the latter coming in a Republican administration. The Democrats argue that if the administration would only further "increase purchasing power" by forcing wages higher and prices lower, then unemployment would vanish. Yet, the administration has done this for nearly eight years and we have as much unemployment today as ever.

The truth is that no legislation—Old Deal or New Deal—will succeed in putting people back to work until the purposes, ambitions, and motives of people are changed. People of all groups—rich and poor—must be taught by churches, schools, movies, radios, and newspapers:

(1) That only as more is produced is there more to divide.
(2) That the failure to use the idle money, idle labor and idle machinery now existing is as wicked as to plow up cotton or kill little pigs.
(3) That loafing is a sin for both the rich and poor.
(4) That their future rests with raising the total national character and income.
(5) That the only fair unemployment legislation would be to "quote" the unemployed on industry, giving some tax or other rebate to employers of said "quotas."

As is true today as it was 2,000 years ago—"As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

Federal Communications Commission Forced Network to Cancel Programs to Allow Him to Speak
By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright 1940)
Washington, April 5.—An amazing thing happened the other night which illustrates forcefully the extent to which totalitarian ideas have become imbedded in the minds of those who control governmental commissions in Washington.

The chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, which has the power of life and death over radio broadcasting stations and companies, demanded a combined national network to express his views. Promptly the broadcasting stations cancelled programs and sacrificed thousands of dollars in revenue. This was because they were afraid to tell the chairman of the Federal Communications Commission that he really was not as important as the President of the United States, and should not demand time whenever he pleased or a combined network such as even senators and representatives do not rate nowadays.

The news value of what the chairman had to say can be measured by what the newspapers did with his address. In most instances it was given a half column or less. Discussion by any governmental commission of a technical subject is not necessarily news of such immediate importance that the entertainment programs, listened to by millions of citizens, must be interrupted so a bureaucrat in Washington can have his say.

As for the speech, it was a defense of the arbitrary action of the communications commission in ordering one of the leading television companies to stop marketing its wares. There is no warrant in law for government control of the sale of television apparatus, but the chairman of the commission says he has the power to do so, and that presumably ends it. Many a commission hereabouts needs only a word or a phrase in an existing law to bolster up a claim for regulating an entire industry.

For months the New Dealers here have been boasting how interested they are in free competition and how eager they are to destroy monopoly. Yet the chairman of the communications commission goes on the air to advise the American people that he and his colleagues do not want to see any American company take the lead but prefer to let all the competitors catch up before anybody is allowed to do any selling of television sets. In other words, the German theory of a cartel whereby the government keeps down all competition or equalizes it is really the standard which the communications commission now has set for America's infant industry—television.

The address of the chairman, which doubtless reflects the views of a majority of the commission, makes it quite clear that the commission intends to grab control of the receivers as well as the transmitters in television, and thus exercise a power never before exercised over American industry outside of the public utility business.

As a matter of fact, the Supreme Court of the United States does not find anywhere in the communications law any authority whereby the commission can regulate the broadcasting business, but apparently the commission has decided to ignore what the Supreme Court says.

The chairman has a number of contradictions in his speech. He disclaims an intention to regulate sales, but then admits it is the commission's duty to prevent premature selling. It is to the commission's judgment of when the time is ripe to do a selling job that industry must bow. Here are some excerpts from the address:

"Let me make it clear that we neither have nor desire any regulatory power over the sale of receivers or over advertising. But any action we take under our duty to license experimental operations and to encourage advances in radio, must of course be taken in the light of actualities...."

"Congress has placed upon the commission the duty to issue licenses for experimental operations; the duty to foster research and development, and ultimately, to recognize those high standards—once they have been achieved by the industry's engineers...."

The word "ultimately" is underlined and so also are the words "industry's engineers." In other words, when one leading company is ready to risk its own prestige and good will on the advice of its engineers and when the one member of the communications commission who knows anything about the technical side of television votes to let the pioneer go ahead and sell sets, the chairman and his associates arbitrarily interpose their obstructive judgment and take refuge in the vague phrases of a law which they make mean whatever they please. Their excuse is an alleged fear that one company might get ahead of the others and the public—mostly rich people—may buy sets that grow obsolete.

The need for a congressional investigation of the commission, and words assuring never intended to be granted by Congress is growing daily as the utterances and activities of the members of these commissions which have grabbed the law-making power plainly show. And when one of these commissions abuses its public position to force licensees to give it time on the air, a precedent has been established for arbitrary action which other commissions and public officials with power and influence to hurt industry may not be slow to utilize.

Chloe Davis Says She Killed Two

she tried to burn her mother's body. She dragged a mattress from a daybed in her mother's bedroom, placed her mother's body on the mattress and started a fire.

"The nightgown was burned from Mrs. Davis, but Chloe saw she could not, as she hoped to do, burn the house. She changed her clothing, took an hour to think things over, concocted a story about her mother believing in 'demons' and called her father."

When the father reached home, Edwards said Chloe told him, when he inquired what was wrong, "you'd better go in the kitchen and see."

Later, the police captain related, the girl said to her father: "Daddy, you mustn't get excited; let's go for a walk."

Chloe, suffering from a head injury police believe she either suffered in a struggle with her mother or she inflicted upon herself with the hammer to substantiate her story that her mother was responsible for the crime, answered police questions with no show of emotion and then sat down and ate a meal.

Edwards said the girl, after giving various versions, finally admitted she killed her mother with the hammer, struck her young brother three times and then beat him to death to "put him out of his misery."

One of Chloe's stories, Edwards said, was that her mother killed the children, set fire to her hair and then ordered her to strike her with the hammer to "stop this pain."

Then she changed her story, Edwards said, and declared that Marquis was dead when she awakened and that she found her mother striking her young sisters. Later, the police captain drew an admission from her, he said, that she beat her brother as well as her mother, but denied striking her two sisters.

Police planned to renew their questioning of the girl today with the aid of her father who moved here with his family five years ago from Grand Rapids, Mich.

Waves to Schoolmates

En route home from the police station for a re-enactment of her version of the crime, Chloe waved airily to schoolmates who, faces white with terror, were clustered on the lawn.

Inside the house, she walked sprightly through rooms whose walls were splashed with blood, telling her story in a lively chatter, Edwards said.

At one point, she strolled over and started to play a small organ purchased for her by her father, of whom she once remarked: "He's nuts."

Pointing to some books in her room, Chloe said: "I'm a bookworm. I read all the time."

Little Patricia Axtell, a neighbor, told police she once saw Chloe fly into a rage and beat her mother or repeatedly with a broomstick when her mother refused her a nickel for candy. She also said Chloe refused to obey her mother in simple household duties.

Reads Comic Strips

During the questioning she reached for the comic page of a newspaper and asked not to be disturbed as she read her favorite strips.

Early in the questioning, Chloe became hungry and demanded some, "lemon pie and chicken soup."

When her order was filled, her eyes gleamed, and she exclaimed: "Oh, boy! That's my favorite dish."

She devoured the pie in a few quick bites and then ate the soup. Captain Edwards said Chloe is strong for her age. She stands 4 feet 11 inches tall.

Mrs. Davis was about a head taller and nearly 40 pounds heavier than Chloe, but officers pointed out that the mother was anemic, and that the healthy, well-developed child could doubtless have bested her in a struggle. Mrs. Davis was almost scalped by the hammer blows and the heads of the three children also were badly battered.

Says Wife Normal

But Chloe and her father told Edwards Mrs. Davis had never before talked of "demons" or exhibited any sign of insanity. Davis added that she was "as normal as any woman could be."

Dr. V. J. Stack told Edwards, however, that Davis telephoned him two weeks ago and said he feared Mrs. Davis was losing her mind.

"I have known the Davis family for years," the physician said, "and knew the parents to be devoted to their children."

He said Mrs. Davis and her children were in his office last Wednesday to confer with his associate, Dr. J. A. O'Connor about treatments she had been undergoing for anemia, but added "I observed nothing that would indicate she was deranged."

Police described the Davises as a typical average, middle-class family. Davis came here in 1925 from Grand Rapids seeking employment, returned east and married his hometown sweetheart, Lolita Bjorkman on Christmas Day, 1926, and returned here in 1935 with his family, finding work as a grocery clerk.

Davis said his wife had been an excellent mother and that she read and studied much of her time to improve herself as a parent. On the bookshelf of the family home were such works as "How To Be a Good Mother" and "How To Raise Children."

An inquest into the tragedy was set for today.

Perfect Demonstration
Philadelphia, April 5 (AP)—An all-girl psychology class at the university was studying the problem of reaction time. Suddenly a mouse scampered around the room. The 24 girls did likewise. Psychologists said it was a perfect demonstration of high-speed reaction.

Boy—While we're sitting in the moonlight, I'd like to ask you—Girl—Yes, dear?

Boy—Couldn't we move over? I'm sitting on a nail.

A friend of ours who has a big lawn surrounding his house made this comment recently: "What this world needs most is a lawn grass that will grow one inch high and stop."

Grandson—Were the girls of your time as wild as the girls of today, Grandpa?

Holes

To step out attired in nothing but holes.

One Negro was worrying about the chances of his being drafted for the army. The other consoled him: "There's two things that can happen, boy. You are either drafted or you ain't drafted. If you ain't, you can forget it; if you is, you still got two chances. You may be sent to the front and you may not. If you go to the front, you still got two chances, you may get shot and you may not. And even if you die, you still has two chances."

And you have to follow orders in the army.

A Negro soldier in the American army was on sentinel duty for the first time in his life. A dark form appeared:

Negro soldier (in threatening voice)—Halt! Who are you?

Officer (halting)—The officer of the day.

Negro soldier—Advance.

The officer advanced, but before he had proceeded half a dozen steps the sentry again cried:

Negro soldier—Halt!

Officer (halting again)—This is the second time you have halted me. What are you going to do next?

Negro soldier—Never you mind what Ah is going to do next. Mah orders are to call "Halt" three times, then shoot!

It may be comforting to have billions of gold buried in the ground somewhere, but trouble starts, well-equipped armies and navies seem more important.

Head Clerk—I am sorry to hear of your partner's death. Would you like me to take his place?

Manager—Very much, if you can get the undertaker to arrange it.

First soldier—Say, did you see that blonde smile at me?

Second soldier—That's nothing. The first time I saw you I laughed.

When nature developed our ears as instruments to warn us of danger, she didn't force our present noisy civilization and failed to provide us with "earlids" with which we could shut out objectionable sounds.

Mile for Mile Donnelly Recalls Old Canal Days

One important phase of Ulster county's industrial developments is today a memory, but a live and stimulating one to Richard Donnelly of Port Ewen, who in his retrospective hours brings that forgotten era so near to yesterday.

Dick, a retired boatman, made countless trips over the old Delaware and Hudson Canal and today he names off its 110 locks with the alacrity of a station caller.

Each mile of the route is like a strip of film passing through his mind and at each stop memory casts its own light upon past events, some momentous, some trivial, but all of them important to this boatman, who is proud that life gave him a chance to be a "canaler."

They were days when horses and men were like gold in the nation's treasury. Days, indeed, when men were men and when school boys yearned for the chance to fill a man's shoes.

Back in 1902, on July 5, Dick and his older brother, Jim, who also lives at Port Ewen, made the last run over the old canal, four years after it was officially closed, and then ended for him and those who worked with him, a life which they were reluctant to see pass into the Valhalla of another age.

Dick Donnelly started boating in 1880, five years after his older brother, Jim, had gone on the boats. Both worked like the other canalers paying $15 a load until they owned both horses and boat and making the most of what money they were able to call their own.

In their earlier days on the canal there were 1,600 boats carrying coal from Honesdale to Eddyville and life on the canal was at its peak. Later in 1898, the year in which the canal closed, there were only 440 boats, the owners of which had foreseen the day of their last run.

Mr. Donnelly's memory is precise to the hour and minute in relating incidents of his boating days and his mind is like a navigator's log as he recites the events of a record-breaking trip in 1885, when he completed a round trip from Sunday to Sunday.

Countless other happenings of the era come to mind as this veteran canaler talks boating and many times these events have been retold as the oldtimers got together.

Dick Donnelly, however, is known best among men of his calling for his authoritative mental record of the canal locks and he remembers also each mile of the levels between the locks and even the longest of these he is able to describe almost mile for mile.

In Mr. Donnelly's earlier days 85 canalers who worked on the D. & H. lived in Port Ewen. A number, most of whom are over 70 years old, still live there today and among them are: Tommy

RICHARD DONNELLY

Hines, James and John Ward, Martin Munnely, John Malia, John Gibbons, Peter Taylor, Daniel Fee, John and Charles Barton, Patrick and Anthony Hines and James, Bill and Dick Donnelly.

In Kingston, among the canal boatmen still living are: John Egan, Michael Edwards, Patrick Coney, Jack Mahan, Tom Feeney, Patrick Flanagan, Edward Malia, Peter Kearney, E. J. Dauner, John Irwin and John Fisher.

Official A. L. P. Canvass Shows Progressives Win

The official canvass of the ballots cast by members of the American Labor Party in Ulster county at the spring primary Tuesday brought something of a surprise in that the so-called "progressive" faction of the party was found to have named their candidates for state committee members. An unofficial count had indicated that the "regular" or Schneider faction had won out.

The canvass gave 32 votes to Carl Curtis, Paul Marcus, John Tottels, Jr., Mathilda Rosenbluth and Dorothy Wilson, the "progressive" candidates.

As a result of the write-in campaign conducted by the Schneider supporters Edward Burns and Edward Arnold received 28 votes each, while Andrew Bray, Fred Church and Joseph Hayman received 29 votes each.

The board of elections threw out a number of ballots which were declared void for different reasons.

Reina Finds Business Good, Raises Salaries

M. Reina, General Electric appliance dealer and distributor for this area, is backing his optimistic view of business for 1940 in a practical manner. Mr. Reina is this week giving his employees a general raise of 10 per cent in salary. He said this morning that it was perhaps an unusual time to make a general salary increase, but he felt that business conditions, so far as he was concerned, justified it. Mr. Reina added that his business the first quarter of this year showed a satisfactory increase over the same period in 1939 and that he was very cheerful over the outlook for the rest of the year.

Kiwanis Hear Of Voice Faults

Some valuable "pointers" on how business concerns lose patronage and friends because of lax or discourteous telephone methods, and the difference between the "voice with a smile" and one that gives the listener a picture of a first-class grouch, were demonstrated to members of Kiwanis at their noon luncheon meeting held at the Governor Clinton Hotel Thursday.

The "lesson" was in the form of moving pictures, with accompanying story, shown by R. E. Zautner, of the advertising department of the New York Telephone Co., with office at Albany. Mr. Zautner is showing this picture at various places throughout New York state. The importance of proper and friendly telephone technique was emphasized by the statement that every day there are over $6,000,000 telephone conversations over half of these being business calls.

President Pratt Boice presided at the business session and preceded the showing of the picture presented Attorney John Sterley, who gave a talk on the history and growth of the Savings and Loan Association idea. He traced it briefly from 1831 to the present day when these associations serve over six million citizens and have assets of nearly six billions of dollars.

They are, he said, the largest single source of home mortgage funds and in 1933 and '34 their mortgages represented over 55 per cent of home mortgages placed by private capital. He praised them as institutions aiming to promote home ownership and with it good citizenship and civic pride and the particular friends of people in moderate circumstances.

It was announced that the directors of Kiwanis had adopted two suggestions that had been made for club activity. One of these was to promote vocational activities among the boys of 10 to 14 years of age at School No. 8. The other was to start the baseball team of the 4-H Club, helping them with equipment, etc., so that they could enter away from home competition with other 4-H Club teams.

To Combat Bugs, Study Their Methods of Attack

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
(A Feature Service Writer)

Your first defense in your war on insects pests is to differentiate between their two methods of attack. Some bugs do their damage by chewing, other kinds by piercing, a plant's leaves or branches and sucking out vital juices.

Study the injuries. If leaves are being eaten, a stomach poison will kill the insect causing the damage. If the plant is turning yellow and wilting, but there is no evidence of chewing, look for plant lice. They will have to be dusted with poison.

Most common varieties of chewing insects are cabbage worms, potato bugs, cucumber beetle, cutworms, grasshoppers and Mexican bean beetles. Lead arsenate, calcium arsenate or paris green is the dish for them. The Mexican bean beetle is particularly fond of magnesium arsenate and it won't do much damage to tender bean plants.

Five parts of hydrated lime are mixed with one part poison to make a dust; two to three table-spoonfuls of poison to a gallon of water for spray. The dust should be sprinkled over each plant in the morning when there is dew. Bran mixed with poison and sprinkled on the ground is good bait for cutworms or grasshoppers.

Plant lice and squash bugs are sucking insects. For plant lice, mix a teaspoonful of nicotine sulphate with a gallon of water in which you have dissolved an ounce of laundry soap. Apply this under the leaves with a small spray. Try to bathe the insects in it.

Squash bugs must be trapped. Place shingles near the plants at night. The bugs will crawl under the boards and may be harvested in the morning and dropped in kerosene.

PROBLEM PARENTS

The 'Don't' Type

"It takes less time and effort to say don't."

By SARAH WINSLOW
(P) Feature Service

"Johnny, don't annoy the dog... don't go near the curb... don't play with that boy again..."

Johnny's mother uses many "don'ts" and "do's." It's an easy habit to fall into. It takes less time and effort to say "don't" than to explain things to a child, especially when a parent is busy with household tasks.

As a result of his mother's hurried and unthinking "don'ts," Johnny is beginning to feel that Mother is a commanding policeman and he a prisoner in her keeping.

"Gee, Mother doesn't let me have any fun at all," is his way of putting it. He feels insecure and unsafe. He is afraid to heed the call of his friends to play ball, because Mother has warned him not to come home messed up.

When Johnny starts thinking in this manner, he is beginning to think of things in the wrong light. His approach is becoming—like his mother's—one of "don't" instead of "do."

Other children, unlike Johnny, react in a different manner. They rebel and commit the acts they have been warned against because they know that such acts are forbidden. To such children, Mother is a tyrant because of her unexplained "don'ts"—and tyranny demands rebellion.

The habit of giving a child an explanation instead of a curt, commanding "don't," may be a little difficult to form at first. However, it becomes a habit after practice, and gives both parent and child a greater sense of satisfaction.

Atop Shawangunk Mountain Cragmoor Comes to Life

Cragmoor, April 5.—A picturesque hamlet, whose quaint buildings resemble cardboard cut-outs on a stage set against a painted backdrop, nestles among fir trees and white birches atop the lofty Shawangunk mountain.

Cragmoor, famed as a summer resort, is awakening from a snug winter's nap.

A casual visitor is refreshed by the natural beauty of the tiny settlement which has less than 50 year-around inhabitants, but whose summer population may be 800 or more.

There is a make-believe atmosphere in this little outpost as the sun breaks through a cloud to splash gold on a few roof tops and paint back shadows on patches of snow.

Later in the spring buds will blossom into tender leaves and color the landscape with pastel shades of green.

Clustered Together

Clustered together are the post office, library, Federated Church, Catholic Chapel, Cragmoor Summer Theatre and the general store.

A stone's throw down the road is the rural school. Scattered here and there are unpretentious homes of permanent residents. On vantage points overlooking the valley are inns which each year bring so many visitors to vacation in healthful mountain air.

Many beautiful private summer homes are within a short distance of the community and not far away lies the Episcopal Chapel.

Mrs. Naomi S. Garritt is postmaster of the small office where current business is at minimum, but booms during warm months.

The library is tan stucco and its classic lines seem incongruous with its modest size. But it is certainly in harmony with Cragmoor's friendly, if fanciful, air.

Mrs. Thomas Sarine is librarian. Offering a commendable variety, the building is open on week days in the summer and only on Fridays during the remainder of the year.

The Federated Church of Cragmoor is a gray and brown wooden structure which was built 40 years ago after fire destroyed the Methodist Church on the same site.

Especially Interesting

The Federated Church is especially interesting because it is the house of worship for various Protestant denominations and for the last two seasons week-end guests have invited a different minister to fill the pulpit each Sunday.

The structure was built largely through generosity of Mrs. George Innes, Jr., widow of the late artist whose work won national attention.

Harold Garritt, treasurer of the church, is a native of Keyville, N. Y., and has lived in Cragmoor for the last 30 years.

The Chapel of the Sacred Heart was built nearly 20 years ago and Mass is said there each Sunday in the summer by a priest from St. Mary's Catholic Church, Ellenville.

Mrs. C. W. Clay of Philadelphia was a generous donor in building the rustic brown wooden chapel. The Episcopal chapel's history dates back almost a half-century. It is a sectional landmark and mecca for many prominent Cragmoor visitors each Sunday during the vacation season.

Home of 'Barnstormers'

The summer Theater, home of the "Barnstormers," has become popular in the area in the last few years. A stock company under the direction of Hugh Nevill of New York enacts plays throughout the summer beginning early in July. Natives and guests play occasional light roles in the stage offerings.

Charles Ecker, proprietor of the general store, is one of Cragmoor's best known residents. His place of business has no outward appearance of a store. An ordinary home, large front rooms have been remodeled with shelves and counters and each season enjoys a land-office trade.

The little school boasts nine pupils and is taught by attractive Miss Hazel Townsend.

Popular summer hotels in this vicinity include the Cragmoor Inn, Herrnhut, Leevold Lodge and Vista Maria, which was formerly the studio of the late Mr. Innes. The Bleakley Fields is a restaurant noted for its excellent bill of fare.

Prominent New York and Philadelphia families have summer homes here and many artists come to Cragmoor each year to paint its scenic grandeur.

Thomas P. Brown, Jr., New York, secretary of Bishop William T. Manning, is one of the outstanding owners of Cragmoor estates.

The season at Cragmoor begins about July 1, somewhat later than many other resorts near Ellenville, but runs into late fall.

Indian Sun Worshipers

Primitive Indians that roamed the hills and plains of central Washington hundreds of years ago were sun-worshippers, it has been learned from a study of writings and paintings on rocks found in this region. Painting in colors of red, green, black, blue and yellow with a pigment that has endured for centuries, the primitive tribes left behind a guide to their day that no one has yet been able to decipher. Students of Indian lore say the designs of rays and circles indicate the tribes worshipped the sun, but have not been able to discover the exact meaning of the markings. Modern Indians, it is said, do not understand them and it is believed the early dwellers were a race apart. Recently, skeletons of what were thought to be members of the primitive tribes were uncovered. They were of adults slightly more than four feet in height.

Science of 'Duckology' Is Latest in Education

As a duck imitator Oscar Quam of Minneapolis, Minn., is a full-fledged professor—he's teaching hunters how to call these wild fowls.

He holds classes six nights a week in his newly founded science of duckology and has drawn up a correspondence course, complete with detailed instruction and illustrations.

It all started when Quam, a veteran Minnesota guide, detected different types of duck calls. So he decided to take a quack at identifying and imitating them.

He figured the duck language ran the gamut of a special greeting call, a lonesome hen call, lazy hen call, chatter and chuckle.

He interpolated the quacks into musical notes and put them down in approved do, re, mi, fa, so, la fashion. Then he went further and divided the language into two dialects—the diver duck dialect and the dipper duck dialect. Divers include the mallard, teal, spoonbill, widgeon and pintail. Dippers are canvasback, redhead, bluebill, butterball, ruddy duck, golden eye and fishduck.

Knowledge of the dialects prevents a duck imitator from giving a diver call to a likely indifferent dipper. Quam teaches that the two classes can be distinguished from a distance by their wing-flapping—a diver being a fast-flapper and a dipper a slow one.

Sex is the basis for the duck-calling procedure in the Quam school. He instructs his pupils in the science of giving ladylike quacks intended to entice drakes within shotgun range.

Hunters yearning to deceive ducks first learn the greeting call. This is done by singing the notes on one of Quam's scales, substituting "quack" for "do, re, etc."

The next step is to go up and down the scale by piping the duck call horn. From then on it's just a question of practice.

LITTLE SPITEFIRE

By Jean Randall

LESTERDAY: No one in New York takes pretty Brenda Burnham's writing ambitions seriously, so she arranges to live for awhile in the old Burnham residence, now a boardinghouse, in a midwestern city. On her arrival—disappointed at the appearance of the shabby house on the shortest street in the city, tired from her journey, and annoyed at the absence of the housekeeper—Brenda quarrels with the only person at home, Dion Dale MacKelvey, a young advertising man.

Chapter Two Isobel

ISOBEL BURKE was at the sink washing lettuce. She was tall and thin, with gray-green eyes and red hair. When she gazed mournfully into her mirror, she saw the freckles on her nose, and not the white skin which set them off so piquantly. She set her lower mouth so grimly that she never knew how charming were its curves when she smiled. She was a planist of real ability, and divided her time between a daily radio quarter of an hour, and teaching at the ambitiously named Conservatory of Fine Arts.

Without turning, she said: "Adelaide got back yet?"

Mac unwrapped the steak. "No. Nor Grenadine. You know as well as I do that it will be midnight before they call it a day."

"But I heard you talking to somebody upstairs! It was a woman's voice, Mac!"

He grinned. "So it was, my dear Miss Burke. No concealing anything from you, is there? Miss Brenda Burnham, our distinguished new boarder, has arrived."

"M'm. Young?"

"And pretty?"

Isobel had put the lettuce into a tea towel, caught the edges together to form a bag, and now stood hurling the contrivance about her head to free it from water. Mac dodged the sudden shower.

"Pretty?" She let the bag fall to her side, regardless of its dismal leakage. "Oh, Mac!"

"Nothing to be worried about," he soothed her. "She thinks this place is terrible, and I'm worse. We've already had two rows."

This information, far from cheering Miss Burke, seemed to finish her. She slumped into a chair and regarded Mac despondently.

"This is simply frightful! If you're already on rowing terms with her—"

He was busy with the steak, trimming it, fitting it into a broiling pan and lighting the gas oven.

"Oh, I am! As a matter of fact, I doubt whether we're even on speaking terms at the present moment. She's a scrapper." He leaned against the kitchen wall while he waited for the broiler to attain sufficient heat. "Her hair curls all over her head like a baby's, and she's got the most alluring pair of dimples I ever beheld. But don't you care," he further consoled her. "She's spoiled, and she's up-stage... the last of the Burnhams, you get me?—returning to view her ancestral home and throw in her lot with the hoi polloi."

Isobel brightened. "She does sound pretty bad, but still—she must be a pretty fast worker! Just got here today and been fighting with you already, I," she added virtuously, "make it a rule never to row with any man till I've known him at least a week."

She rose and began removing the lettuce from its bag, drying each leaf carefully.

"Maybe Eric will fall for her," she mused. "I suppose he isn't home either?"

"No. But I'm going to put this steak in right now!" He suited the action to the word. "I've been working like a fiend all day and I'm starved. What else besides the meat and lettuce?"

"These rolls. Pop 'em in the oven to warm while the steak is cooking, Mac."

He said dryly: "You don't really, Isobel, you just think you do!"

She sniffed. "I suppose you call that saving my pride? Well, let me tell you, Dion MacKelvey, I'd rather be—"

Eric

HE TOOK her by the elbows and re-seated her in the chair. "When you begin calling me Dion, it's time for desperate measures. Saving your pride—thunder! If you will have your little joke, I'm willing to support you in it; but some day a stranger will overhear you, and take you seriously; and then you'll find yourself engaged to me willy-nilly. Which," he added firmly, avoiding her eye, "would be a dickens of a note when neither one of us has anything more than an affectionate concern for the other."

There was a short silence in the kitchen. Then Isobel sighed and arose.

"I'd better be getting the table set, I suppose. Miss Whatshername coming down?"

"Yes. I promised to call her. There's Eric! Hi, old man!" he called.

Eric Mason appeared at the door of the kitchen. He was a tall young man with bright dark eyes and a smart little mustache. He had spent a long day showing empty office suites to prospective tenants, but he looked as immaculate as if he had but that moment tubbed and dressed. He sniffed the broiling steak with unmistakable eagerness.

"Grenadine back?"

"Does it look like it?" Mac indicated the apron he had tied about his waist. "But Isobel here had an inspiration. She brought home some food and dinner's practically ready. Remember last Parade Day?"

"Do I? Peanut butter sandwiches and lemon pop. This is something like! I always said, Isobel, you have your good points. Anything I can do to help?"

"Put four glasses on and fill the pitcher. I've already put ice cubes in it."

"Four? How come four? You don't mean to say that Adelaide—?"

"The new boarder," Isobel briefly informed him. "Brenda Burnham. She came this afternoon. Mac says she's pretty."

"That so?" Eric put a hand to the knot of his cravat. "Blonde or brunette?"

"You'll see for yourself in about two minutes," Mac replied. "This steak is ready to be eaten right now! How about your running up and asking her to come down, Isobel? A woman's gentle touch, you know—that sort of thing! I expect the poor girl has the impression she's got into a madhouse, or something. Adelaide forgot she was coming, the wire her aunt sent is on the hall table unopened. I took her for an agent. . . . How about it, Isobel?"

Isobel moved reluctantly toward the hall. "I call you both to witness that I hate her with a deadly hatred before I've even seen her! Remember that, Eric, when you begin to lecture on feminine prudence to personalities!"

Left to themselves the two young men exchanged expressionless glances. Then Eric Mason said, very low:

"She's more than half in earnest about being head over heels where you're concerned, Mac! Better watch your step!"

"Rot!" was the careless reply. "Isobel's a good scout and we're friends; that's all."

Eric shrugged his shoulders. "Glad she doesn't elect to show her friendship for me like that! But it's your lookout, old man!"

Adelaide

THERE was time for no more. Down the wide hall which bisected the house, the two girls came. Isobel walked a step ahead, definitely, as though inviting comparison between her own angular height and Brenda's dainty roundness. The newcomer had run a wet comb through her silky curls and had changed her rumpled traveling dress for a thin pale pink walk suit. Eric suppressed a low murmur of astonishment as he saw her.

Dinner, in spite of Isobel's obvious depression and a certain stiffness on Mac's part, was highly successful. Perhaps to punish Mac, perhaps because she was innately courteous and sweet, Brenda exchanged every effort to make the occasion a gay one. She questioned the other girl about her music, was genuinely interested in her radio work. She lured Eric into telling his funniest stories of impossible tenants and those who would like to be tenants. She even spoke gratefully of Mac's reception of her, and his kindness to a weary traveler. By the time dessert—which consisted of fruit and cheese Mac had found in the icebox—was served, the four young people were on the most amicable of terms.

It was not until breakfast time the next morning that Brenda met her landlady. Tired from her long journey, nevertheless she had awakened early and lay listening to the hum of preparation for a new day which resounded through the big house.

After the decorous silence of Aunt Anne's, there was something heartening about the gay voices which sounded from room to room.

"Through with the bathroom, Mason?" she heard Mac call, and soon after there was a rush of water which indicated Eric was having a shower.

Isobel called down: "Adelaide, darling, did the laundry come home last Saturday? I can't find my blue linen anywhere."

Delightful odors of coffee and bacon began to drift upstairs. Finally, half in despair and half in an eager anticipation which was entirely new to her, Brenda arose and dressed.

Breakfast was going forward briskly when she reached the dining room. Mac and Eric both rose and Mrs. Rostetter, a plump motherly looking woman, followed their example—though more slowly.

"Brenda, my dear child!" she said warmly.

She took the girl into her embrace quite simply, kissed her, indeed, as if ties of blood as well as of affection united them.

"I was so sorry about yesterday," she went on, a mist of emotion making her blink. "I got all mixed up about the day of your coming, and Anne's telegram came—Mac said it did!—after I'd left the house. I hope he took good care of you? I hope you found everything you needed in your room? Sit here, dear!"

She resumed her own seat and glanced challengingly at her.

"The last of the Burnhams come home!" she announced. "This child's father and aunt were brought up here—her grandfather built the house itself! I want you all," she went on impressively, "to be thinking of some way we can mark her return to us. The Street will want to celebrate it!"

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Punishment Fits Crime
Huntington, Ind.—A hitchhiker, angry at his failure to get a ride, broke eight empty bottles along state road No. 3, north of here.

Sheriff Marvin Idle picked him up, gave him a broom and made him go back over his whole route, sweeping while the sheriff rode beside him.

The sheriff kept the hiker in jail overnight and then told him to leave the county.

Mechanical Age
Fairbanks, Alaska—An Indian asked Dominic Vernetti, trading post operator at Koyukuk Station, for "a spark plug for a baby bottle, please."

Vernetti scratched his head. Then his glance chanced upon a rubber nipple.

Quotes Bible
Salt Lake City—A man who said he was an ordained minister quoted Bible passages in defending himself against a charge of blocking pedestrian traffic by attracting a crowd to his street corner preaching.

Then he pleaded, quoting Jeremiah 26:14:

"But as for me, behold, I am in your hand; do with me as is good and right in your eyes."

Judge Albert H. Elliott imposed a $10 fine, but suspended it with the comment:

"The Bible undoubtedly was the proper law for the Israelites 2,000 years ago, but I don't believe it applies in this case."

Talesman
St. Paul—When John Christiansen received two subpoenas—one of them addressed to him and the other to Nicholas Christiansen—to appear for jury duty, he promptly went to the courthouse, taking his dog, Nicholas, along.

But Nicholas was excused. It developed the second subpoena had been intended for a human Nicholas Christiansen living at another address.

Fireman's Holiday
Lincoln, Neb.—Charles Kidney, Sr., a retired fireman, came from Los Angeles to visit his son, Charles, Jr., and found a fireman's job waiting for him.

Spontaneous combustion in an oily cloth set fire to young Charles' house. Father put out the flames while son called the fire department.

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, April 5—Dinner was served to a group of 20 Wednesday in connection with the Ladies' Aid church quilting. The hostesses were Mrs. Blanche Rodriguez and Miss Jennie Kerr. The Rev. and Mrs. Daniel Bruck and children, Carolyn and Stephen, of New Brunswick, N. J., were week-end visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gustafson.

Sunday school and church attendance Sunday afternoon compared favorably with that of the record Easter services. The Rev. Frank Bailey presented another of his customarily comprehensive and keenly interesting subjects, "Proof of the Resurrection." Mrs. Oliver Tweedy was the presiding organist. Time of the services each Sunday is 2 and 2:40 o'clock, respectively, and everyone is cordially welcome.

William Jones of Main street, who has been in poor health most of the winter, is considerably improved. Monday afternoon he walked down to Lester Davis' store and back for the first in two months.

The Second Election District 1940-41 Board of Inspectors organized with Charles H. Weidner as chairman at the beginning of Tuesday's presidential spring primary election. The three other board members are Ernest F. Davis, George Burgher and Elwyn Davis. Enrolled voters turned out sparingly. A total of 17 ballots were cast, 12 Republicans and five Democrats.

Mrs. Addie Kelder visited her daughter, Mrs. Nettie Bruckner, in West Hurley on Tuesday.

Holcomb Speaks On Hospitalization For Tuberculosis

Hospitalization for tuberculous persons was discussed by Dr. Fred Holcomb, superintendent of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital at the Noonday Club meeting at Ellenville this week. Dr. Holcomb spoke on the necessity of co-operation in the Early Diagnosis Campaign being conducted during April by the Ulster County Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health.

"We must disregard entirely the mistaken idea still held by some that tuberculosis is inherited," said Dr. Holcomb. "What we need is to emphasize that every person who has tuberculosis has caught it from someone else. No person who has tuberculosis would knowingly give the disease to another. The best protection for himself, his family and the community is to accept the best medical advice and seek hospital care as early as possible."

The fact that 40 to 50 per cent of cases enter the hospital in the far-advanced stage was brought out by the speaker. He stressed the importance of the X-ray in diagnosis and said when a case is discovered early the chances for recovery are great and the period of hospitalization comparatively short. Thus saving many lives and much of the taxpayers money.

Dr. Holcomb also explained pneumothorax, phrenicectomy and thoracoplasty, surgical aids, which are used in the rest treatment at the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital.

Over the Border
Bushville, Ind.—Leonard Keal, summoned for jury duty in Rush county, did not appear in court. Sheriff Paul Benington went to investigate. Keal insisted he'd been to court.

But, the sheriff learned, it was the wrong court—in Brookville, Franklin county seat.

Keal only recently moved across the county line.

Tree of Heaven Grows In Out-of-Way Places

No matter where you go in a city, in Boston, New York, Chicago, Washington or any one of many other cities in this country or abroad there is one interesting tree that is continually cropping up in the most unexpected places. It can grow between cement blocks; it seems to thrive on nothing but ashes; it will breathe in air laden with soot, gas and smoke, yet produce an abundance of green foliage; it apparently likes the toughest and most trying growing condition it can find. This is the tree of heaven, a native of northern China, which grows better under city conditions in this country than any other tree, native or exotic.

It was first taken to England by Peter Collinson in 1751 and probably reached the United States late in the same century, writes Donald Wyman in New England Naturalist. At one time it was highly recommended for city planting in this country (and still is in some places) so that it has become widely distributed in America. It is easy to propagate, either by seeds or root cuttings, and because of its vigorous growth has made itself at home in many out-of-the-way places.

The tree of heaven is also called ailanthus.

The recital will be given by a guest artist, Dr. Charles M. Courboin, the famous Belgian-American organist, now of New York city, and will begin promptly at 3:30 o'clock. The program will include "Overture to the Occasional Oratorio" by Handel; the Courboin arrangement of the Schubert "Ave Maria," the Bach "Prelude and Fugue in A Minor," three numbers by Franck, a Bach chorale prelude and the Courboin arrangement of "The Lost Chord" by Sullivan.

Gambino-Naccarato

Miss Josephine Naccarato of 20 North street and Benjamin Gambino of Glasco were united in marriage Saturday evening in Port Ewen by Judge Benjamin Sleight. The attendants were Miss Louise Turck and Michael Feallice, both of this city. The couple will reside at 110 St. James street.

Zoda-Guziak

Miss Mary Guziak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Constantine Guziak of 381 Abel street, was united in marriage Sunday, March 31, to Sala Zoda, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Zoda of Port Ewen, at the Immaculate Conception Church by the Rev. Stanislaus Malinowski. The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a white satin gown with long train and a finger tip veil fastened to her head by a crown. She carried cala lilies.

She was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Sadie Zoda, who acted as maid of honor and wore a tulle gown of aqua and carried a bouquet of talisman roses, and Miss Geraldine Donnelly, who wore peach taffeta and carried pink roses. John Guziak, brother of the bride, acted as best man. Joseph Sarkowitz of Brooklyn was usher.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the White Eagle Hall after which the bride and groom left on a wedding trip to New York. They will reside in Port Ewen.

City's Old Gardens Reviewed at D.A.R.

A description of some of the beautiful gardens which once existed in Kingston was read by Miss Louise W. van Hovenberg at the meeting of Wiltwyck Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution held Thursday afternoon at the Chapter House.

The paper entitled, "Old Gardens of Kingston," had been written by Mrs. Julia McEntee Dillon some years ago. Most of the members were surprised to learn that two beautiful gardens were located on the corners now occupied by Bernstein's and Bennett's stores.

The former was a garden belonging to the Tappen House and the latter belonged to the Jacobus Bruyn house. These colonial gardens were devoted not only to the raising of flowers and herbs but to rare fruits.

A musical program was given by Miss Alma Burger, soprano, who

Mrs. William Macgregor Mills reported on her recent visit to the Tamassee School in North Carolina which is supported by D.A.R. funds. Plans were also discussed for raising a small fund for purchasing books for the school.

During the business session Mrs. Maynard Mizel announced a broadcast over Station WKNY Monday evening, April 9, at 8 o'clock, in which several members of Wiltwyck Chapter will participate.

The annual spring card party will be held April 30 with Mrs. Hiram Whitney as chairman. Mrs. Clarence Dunn announced that the Chapter House will be open for the annual Apple Blossom Festival Saturday, May 11, from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. Tea will be served in the afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Resolutions on the death of Miss Mary K. Husted were read by Mrs. Lancelot Phelps. In closing, Mrs. Charles Terwilliger, regent of Wiltwyck Chapter, appointed the nominating committee as follows: Mrs. James Scott, chairman; Miss Sarah Hasbrouck, Mrs. B. C. Van Ingen, Mrs. Charles Wood and Mrs. Maurice Safford.

At the close of the program refreshments were served by the hostesses for the afternoon, Mrs. John Robinson and Mrs. Burdette R. Tuttle.

Children of Mary Card Party

The annual card party of the Children of Mary of St. Peter's parish of Kingston will be held on Wednesday evening, April 10, at St. Peter's school hall, and promises to be successful judging from the encouraging reports of the committee. Playing will begin at 8:30 o'clock. Pinocchio as well as bridge will be played.

Refreshments will be served and an enjoyable evening is assured the public taking part in this card party.

The following girls have been appointed on the card party committee by Catherine Weierich, president of the sodality: tickets may be obtained from the members of the committee: Mathilda Bruck, chairman; Laura Albright, Gertrude Bruck, Elizabeth Crangan, Marie Dugan, Rita Fautz, Philomena Gehring, Anna Marie Geuss, Dorothy Geuss, Margaret Kilmer, Anna Laicher, Dolores Mellett, Margaret Mellett, Anna Porsch, Geraldine Raichle, Irene Raichle, Constance Ringwald, Dorothy Van Eitlen, Mary Weierich, Florence Weishaupt and Dorothy Zech.

Rev. and Mrs. Wright Greeted at Reception

The congregation of Wurts Street Baptist Church tendered their new pastor, the Rev. John A. Wright and family, a hearty welcome to the church and to Kingston last evening at a largely attended social evening. The church parlors were decorated with palms and cut flowers. An enjoyable musical program was given by the church choir under the leadership of Herman LaTour, the choirman, and vocal solos were also given by Miss Edith VanDeMark and Charles Brodhead.

A short skit on missionary work in the south was given by Laura Purcell and Edna Hamilton, two members of the young ladies' guild formed by Mrs. Wright. Interspersed with the musical numbers of the program were several addresses of welcome given by the Rev. Roger K. Powell of New Berlin, the Rev. George Berens of the Port Ewen Reformed Church, the Rev. Russell Gaenzle of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, and others. Floyd W. Powell welcomed Mr. and Mrs. Wright on behalf of the church and congregation.

The Rev. Mr. Wright expressed his appreciation of the good fellowship expressed by the social and said he looked forward to the coming months with a great amount of pleasure and asked all to cooperate with his efforts to advance the work of the Wurts Street Church. Beautiful baskets of flowers were presented to Mrs. Wright and to Mrs. Roger K. Powell. Among out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. David Coleman of Albany, mother and father of Mrs. Wright.

After the program delightful refreshments were served by the Ladies' Aid and a social hour was spent. All wished the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Wright the best of success and happiness in their new field in Kingston.

Dance is Success

The annual dance and entertainment of St. Mary's Holy Name Society that was held Wednesday evening in the school auditorium, socially was a success. The large hall was crowded to the doors with youngsters and oldsters who danced to the music of Ted Riccobono's and Pardee & Allen's orchestras. The entertainment consisted of dance numbers by the little men and women from the Cashin School of Dancing under the direction of Helen Cashin Davitt. Vocal selections were by pupils from the Reiser Studio, supervised by Mrs. William H. Reiser, Danny J. Bittner, accompanist. St. Mary's choir also gave a number of popular selections.

IS IT POLITE FOR WOMAN TO WEAR HAT WHEN SHE DINES WITH FRIEND?

Hat Always Correct with Street Clothes but Evening Meal Usually Requires Another Type of Dress

The general confusion about when to wear a hat, and when not to, has undoubtedly been added to by the numbers of girls all over the country who are walking about on the city streets wrapped in heavy furs or conventional town coats and carrying muffs or wearing gloves but not hats—unless the prettily bows with which many of them tie their blowing forelocks are to be considered hats. This habit of the moment is another proof perhaps that women are sheep when it comes to following fashion—moreover, following a false scent.

This hatless pattern was set, as a matter of fact, by the palest of blondes of a decade ago, and followed by occasional others since, and now at last by all the sheep who associate a bare head with a mink coat and the word glamour—because of some newspaper pictures of a certain New York debutante whose hair is very dark. Even so, according to best taste, a hat is obligatory with daytime street clothes! Which brings me to the question of whether it is polite for a woman to wear a hat during dinner when she goes in street clothes to dine, with a friend at her house before going together to the movies.

The answer to this is that with street clothes a hat is always correct. Although if she were merely staying to dinner without intending to go to the movies later, she would probably take off her hat. But there is no definite rule because of her daytime style of dress with which a hat is correct. On the other hand, taking an evening meal in a private house really requires another type of dress with which no hat is suitable.

Mr. X

Dear Mrs. Post: Mr. and Mrs. X have been divorced for several years. They have two grown daughters, who continue to live with the mother when they are not away at college. Mr. X is getting married again and he wants to know whether he should have announcements sent to his former wife's relatives, and whether they should be also sent to the daughters at college.

Answer: I can't imagine any father not writing to tell his two daughters such news as this! Or better still, going to see them to tell them himself. If he has remained on friendly terms with some of his wife's relatives, I think it would also be in better taste to write notes or telephone them rather than send announcements.

Naming a Baby Incorrectly

Dear Mrs. Post: My sister made a mistake and named her baby "John Lee Blank, 2nd." She thought this was right but has now discovered by reading your answer to some one else that it should have been John Lee Blank, Jr. How can she change this error?

Answer: It can't be likely that his full name has been used often enough to have any one know him as 2nd. In any case, by the time he is old enough to have this distinction between himself and his father matter, he can long have been known as John Lee Blank, Jr.

Pretty Lacy Lampshade
You Can Quickly Weave

Charming for your dressing table is this dainty lampshade—of white lace insertion and taffeta ribbon binding tape in white or a pretty pastel color.

Weave it easily yourself on an inexpensive frame. Around the wires (except those that grip the light bulb) wind strips of white crepe paper, cut ½ inch wide across the grain. Paste down ends. Then attach strips of lace as Diagram 1 shows, pasting the ends at inside bottom and top of frame.

Now thread a strip of taffeta tape through a bobby pin and, starting at top, weave over and under lace as Diagram 2 shows. At finish of each row paste ends of tape together inside frame. As a final touch add a taffeta bow.

You can quickly make a matching boudoir set, too, using a breadboard for a loom. And weaving's such fun you'll want to make other lovely things. Amazing what you can do with inexpensive materials—on home-made looms!

Besides giving detailed directions for the lampshade and boudoir set, our 32-page booklet tells how to weave doilies, rugs, pillow tops, belts, purses—many other pretty items for home and personal use.

Send 10 cents in coin for your copy of HOW TO WEAVE USEFUL NOVELTIES to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Too Many 'I's' Put Dodgers in Doubtful Class

(By Feature Service)

Clearwater, Fla.—The Dodgers surprised everyone by finishing third last season. And in some quarters that has brought on a bit of pennant talk for 1940. But I think Brooklyn will have to be mighty lucky to grab third place again.

Leo Durocher has a better ball club than he did a year ago. But last year's team got some good breaks and played out the string to a driving finish. (Yeah, I know the Dodgers had some bad luck, too, Wyatt and Mungo out, etc.) This year's club may not get the breaks. The Giants and Cubs and Pirates, in my book, aren't going to crumble. In fact, they're all going to be better.

The Brooklyn have too many "I's"—and all of them aren't likely to turn out well. For instance, there's Wes Farrell. Regarding him, Deacon Will Mc-

Kechnie sagely observed: "If a guy can't win for the Yankees, how can he win for the Dodgers?"

Then there's old Jim Carleton. He had a fair year with Milwaukee and Durocher says he looks good but the odds are all against him. Mungo? Well, Mungo has always been a spring feature but no one ever heard of him winning 20 games. Wyatt? His injured knee isn't going to be the same again.

Hugh Casey is high in Durocher's book, and he may have a big year. He won 15 last season. Luke Hamlin won 20 last year but he had never won more than a dozen before. May he can repeat and maybe he can't. Some of the other hurlers will help but there probably won't be a big game winner among them.

The infield should be better with Hal Reese around to spell Durocher at shortstop. And Gus Mancuso should strengthen the catching department to take some of the load off Babe Phelps. Cookie Lavagetto looks good for another big year at third. The outfield looks better, too. If Joe Vosmik, from the Red Sox, can hit his old stride, he should furnish a needed punch. Gene Moore figures to be better. Jim Rippe looks for a good year. And Charley Gilbert, a speedy youngster from Nashville, should help.

It's a better ball club and it may finish third again, but, buddy, forget that pennant talk.

Nominating Board Is Formed To Pick Track Committees

Waners' Constant Exercise Helps Him With His Record

New York, April 5 (AP)—On April 16 Paul Glee Waner, known affectionately to his ball playing intimates as "Rat," will celebrate his 37th birthday and open his 15th campaign in the outfield of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Paul, the rugged little individualist, deserves a hand. In a sport largely dominated these days by sober young men cut to a pattern, who mind the boss and bank their money, Waner has continued to go his merry, irresponsible way, while setting a lifetime record for brilliance unmatched in the National League today.

Over 14 full seasons the 155-pound marvel from Harrah, Okla., has set a phenomenal batting average of .342. Only one player in the league, husky Johnny Mize of St. Louis, can top that mark. Mize has an average of .346, but only for three seasons, while Joe Medwick, the next closest rival to Waner, has pounded .338 over an eight-year span.

Proof of Greatness
Perhaps it is necessary to look up Mel Ott's lifetime mark to realize the full measure of Waner's greatness. The Giants' star has played the same number of years as Paul, 14, despite the fact he is some five years younger, and is considered something of a marvel, himself.

Well, Ott has it over Waner only in one department—home runs—and Mel has had that freakish right field stand in the Polo Grounds to shoot at for all of his baseball life. Otherwise, Waner leads him in total runs, hits, doubles, triples, total bases, sacrifices and stolen bases. Paul leads all the other players in the league in each of these departments, too.

Three times the little guy has led the National League in hitting, with averages of .380, .362 and .373. There is no telling how many times he might have won the honor if he ever had seriously disciplined himself and given it the old college try every day all season.

How He Does It
For Paul has had a lot of fun all the way. Wiry as a buckskin and nearly as unpredictable in his personal habits, he has pretty much made his own training rules. It is a mystery to most of his comrades how he has managed to sustain his brilliance. Incidentally, he also leads Ott in lifetime fielding.

"I'll tell you how I've done it," he said one night down south early this spring. "A little feller like me has to do something to stay even with all those big fellers, so I've done it by playin' golf and huntin' all season."

"That's kept me limber and tough and kept my eyes in shape. While these big fellers are sittin' around the fire I'm out takin' exercise. That's the only way a little feller like me can hold his own."

Friends both of Waner and his new manager, Frankie Frisch, are watching with unconcealed and amused curiosity to see how the pair hit it off. Frisch is a disciplinarian, but his friends say he is far too smart to try to make a party-waist out of the little veteran.

Last night's meeting to map plans for the second annual track meet at the Municipal Stadium this summer drew approximately 20 enthusiasts of the sport to the city hall.

At the business session held in the offices of the Recreation Department and presided over by Sidney Lutzin, superintendent, steps were taken towards organizing a permanent committee to promote the event.

A nominating board was appointed to suggest workers for the various sub-committees, that will handle the promotion of the meet, which is expected to draw athletes from all parts of the country for local competition.

On the nominating body are Lester Elmdorf, Harry Edson, Ed Coughlin, Clarence Rowland and Sidney Lutzin. They will make their report next week.

Discussing last year's track carnival, Superintendent Lutzin said that the coming event should be even bigger and better from every standpoint with a long list of famous athletes for competition and plenty of interest to draw a crowd to the uptown park.

Mangrum Takes Golf Lead From Demaret at Augusta

By BILL BONI

Augusta, Ga., April 5 (AP)—The most amazing thing about any amazing round of golf is that invariably it could have been even more amazing.

An example is the 64 which Lloyd Mangrum, 25-year-old assistant professional from Oak Park, Ill., shot at the Augusta National Golf Club yesterday in the first round of the masters tournament.

Not only was it eight strokes better than par for this handsome, true-test course, but it was one of the lowest scores ever recorded for any single round in a U. S. championship. It also broke the Augusta course record of 66 held jointly by Gene Sarazen and Byron Nelson.

On the bare essentials, it consisted of nine birdies, eight pars and one bogey. Beyond that, it included 32 shots hit perfectly to the greens and never off the fairways. It also included five birdie putts ranging in length from six to 25 feet.

Could Have Been 61

Since that 64 gave Mangrum a three-stroke lead over Jimmy Demaret and his back-nine 30, it would seem it was a satisfactory round. Yet Mangrum could look back with disappointment on those three putts he needed to get down from 25 feet on the tenth hole: the eight-footer for a deuce that he missed on the 16th, and the putt for an eagle 3 on the eighth hole that hit the back of the cup. Boiling that all down, the 64 could have been a 61 with a break or two either way.

It's always that way with these rounds. But Mangrum, in contrast to most other pros, admitted quite frankly that, with a break or two the other way, it also might have been a 70.

"I'm still thinking about some of those putts," he conceded. "If I'd hit them just a bit easier, they would have stopped short of the cup. If I'd hit them just a bit harder, they would have gone over it."

Others Near Top

Back of Demaret in a tie for third were Open Champion Byron Nelson, winner here in 1937, and Harry Cooper, with 69's. Lawson Little and Craig Wood had 70's, while one-under-par 71's included Dick Metz, Henry Picard, Sam Snead, Tommy Armour and Willie Goggin. Bobby Jones, the old master, had a 79.

Lloyd Mangrum has been scoring consistently for some time, but had done nothing that was exposed to intense publicity until yesterday's round.

Chances Bright

Admittedly, though, he is one of the comers. Also he is another of the Texas crop that includes Byron Nelson, Ben Hogan, Ralph Guldahl, the defending champion in this masters, and Demaret. Further, he is a lad, who, in his quiet and convincing way, is sure he's going places.

One of the most accurate of the youngsters, he is particularly proud of his iron play, and of his irons likes best his No. 7 and his No. 2. That No. 7 was a handy

New Snow Helps East's Ski Hills

Boston, April 5 (AP)—Yesterday's snowfall left two or more inches of wet powder snow on most New England ski slopes and the forecast of fair weather should result in another week-end of fair to good conditions.

The eastern slopes in New Hampshire's White Mountains received a new snow coating yesterday over granular bases of 11 to 19 inches. More than two inches of new powder were reported from Pinkham Notch, Jackson, Bartlett, Intervale, Keags, North Conway and Conway.

Skiing was fair at Mt. Mansfield and Pico Peak, two of the popular hills in Vermont. Pico Peak reported a 40-inch base on the slope with an inch and a half new snow. The trail had two inches new over a 70-inch base. There was a breakable crust at Mt. Mansfield, and a good granular surface on four feet of hard snow at Woodford, Vt.

Still Good Skiing In N. Y. Centers

Albany, N. Y., April 5 (AP)—Ski enthusiasts may still find fair to excellent conditions at four New York centers.

Latest snow and weather reports of the State's Publicity Bureau include:

Cooperstown, 20 inches corn snow; 42 above; cloudy; excellent skiing.

Phoenicia, 10 to 20 inches old corn and granulated snow on mountain trails; 36 above; skiing fair.

Pine Hill, 22 inches settled powder snow on trails; 35 above; cloudy; good skiing.

Wanakena, four inches granular snow on 20 inches packed base; 36 above; cloudy; fair skiing.

Bogskar Victor In Grand National

Aintree, Eng., April 5 (AP)—Bogskar, a rank outsider, came from nowhere to win the 102nd Grand National Steeplechase today. MacMoffat was second and Gold Arrow, third.

While L. Scott Briggs' MacMoffat, second last year, and Gold Arrow, owned by J. R. Neill, ran with the leaders from the start, Bogskar's trainer, E. closed fast, however, to carry Lord Stalbridge's siles to victory by four lengths. MacMoffat was six lengths in front of Gold Arrow,

Harold Quick Is Winner 100 to 58

Tonight Tony Gentile and John Canfield played at 8 o'clock.

Barn Pinnerers Are Champs Of Central Major League

Nine Bowling Teams Post Scores of Better Than 2900

Detroit, April 5 (AP)—The 3,000 mark, the elusive "par" figure in five-man bowling, still is untouched in the current American Bowling Congress tournament, despite four weeks of intensive firing at the maps.

Nine teams, including the Altes Lager Five of Grand Rapids, Mich., which rolled into fourth place with a count of 2,943 last night, have posted scores over 2,900, but if past records hold good most of these leaders will be displaced before the tournament ends.

Not since 1922 has a score of less than 3,000 won the A. B. C. team event, and in seven of the 17 intervening years the winners have posted 3,100 or more.

The highest score ever recorded in the A. B. C. is 3,234, rolled by the Birk Bros. team of Chicago in 1938. That same Birk Bros. team will compete here this week-end.

Scoring also has been under the usual standard in the doubles, with only one team exceeding 1,300 and then by only three pins.

In the singles, the 730 posted by John Taylor, of Upper Darby, Pa., equals the winning mark of last year, but it has been exceeded several times before.

The leaders:

In a bitterly fought match with the Joneses, the Barn bowlers copped the championship of the Central Major League last night.

The Barn pinnerers went into the match with a five-game lead over the Dairymen and needed only one to win. They took that by coming out ahead in the third after dropping the first by six pins and the second by 13.

Johnny Ferraro featured for the champs with his 691 series, substantially aiding this group to ring up its fourth major bowling title in the past two seasons.

The Barn, sponsored by Bill Fitzpatrick this season, after having competed under different colors previously, is expected to be broken up the same as the Jones Dairymen at the end of the tenpin schedule for 1940 in order to distribute the players for a better balanced circuit.

GERMAN BOMBER RAIDS BRITISH CONVOY

The British censor-approved caption of this picture describes the puffs of smoke near the plane as anti-aircraft shells bursting around an attacking German bomber as it swooped down on a British convoy. Shown in the foreground is a British destroyer attending the convoy. British said one neutral vessel was lost and two others damaged in the raid, while the Germans claimed they had bagged nine vessels, including several warships. Surrogate Holds Mrs. Lawton's Will Invalid on Testamentary Disposition

29th day of January, 1940, leaving a last will and testament which was admitted to probate on the 12th day of March, 1940.

Upon the probate of the decedent's will, the executor seeks the aid of the court in the construction of the second paragraph, which disposes of the residuary estate. A citation was issued and served upon a sister and a nephew of decedent, all of the interested parties. The sister and decedent's husband, William Lawton, the petitioner, are the only beneficiaries named in the will. The first paragraph provides for payment of debts and funeral expenses. The second paragraph contains the following:

"Second: I give, devise and bequeath all my property, real and personal, of every kind, nature and description to my husband, William Lawton, in case he survives me for a period of one year after my death and in the event that he does not survive my death for such period of one year, then and in that event, I give, devise and bequeath all my property aforesaid to my sister, Anna M. DeLisser."

The will disposes of real and personal property. The husband was named as executor.

Is the absolute ownership and power of alienation of the property disposed of by the second paragraph suspended beyond the statutory period? It is suspended when there are no persons in being by whom an absolute fee in possession can be conveyed. It is void in its creation when suspended by any limitation or condition whatever for a period longer than the continuance of two lives in being at the creation of the estate, with certain exceptions not applicable here. (Real Property Law, Section 42 Benedict vs. Salmon, 177 A. D. 385). The rule as a suspension beyond two lives in being at the death of the testator applies to personal property, with exceptions not important here. (Personal Property Law, Section 11.)

Remoteness of vesting affected both bequests under the residuary clause in the instant case. There was no trust created; no disposition of income; no power of sale of real estate. The husband took no vested estate or interest in the principal or income of the residuary fund. The right to either was conditioned upon his surviving the death of testatrix for one year. The provision for the sister was an alternative gift, conditional upon the husband not surviving the testatrix for the period of one year. (Kenyon vs. See, 94 N. Y. 363). There was, therefore, following decedent's death no absolute owner or owners of the residuary estate who could transfer a good title. Should the sister predecease the husband within the period of one year and the husband die within the period of one year, in whom would the residuary fund vest?

It is not sufficient that the estate attempted to be created, may by happening of subsequent events be terminated within the period prescribed, if such events might so happen that such estates might extend beyond the period, in other words, to render future estates valid they must be so limited that in any possible contingency they will absolutely terminate within the statutory period or they will be held void. (Haynes vs. Sherman, 117 N. Y. 433 at 437; Shetter vs. Smith, 41 N. Y. 328.)

In matter of Roe 281 N. Y. 541, decided November 28, 1939, a unanimous decision of the Court of Appeals, the testatrix left her residuary estate in trust, naming a trustee; the income to be used for the support and maintenance of a nephew, if found within two years; and his children if he had children and if they could be found within two years. Upon the death of the nephew and his children, the remainder to be divided between the grandchildren of the nephew. If the nephew or his family were not found within a period of two years, the trustee was directed to use the fund for the purchase of a site and erection of a hospital for the Village of Patchogue, and this was to be in honor of the testatrix's father.

In considering the provisions referred to the Court held that the sole question was whether the trust for the hospital vested at the date of testatrix's death, subject to being divested upon the contingency of the nephew or nephew's children being located within two years or whether the vesting was held in abeyance for the two year period. If the latter, it violates the rule against perpetuities. Future limitation of an estate is too remote unless it is apparent that it must take effect and vest, if at all, within the period allowed by the rule as viewed at the time when the will takes effect. Here it was held that the testatrix died intestate as to the bequest under review, and that the test to be applied is whether the prescribed contingency or event may not arise until after the time allowed by law within which the gift ever must take effect.

The disposition of the residuary estate in the instant case presents a situation where the vesting was held in abeyance for a period that runs counter to the statutory rule.

As to the residuary estate the decedent here died intestate.

An order may be entered in conformity herewith.

Dated April 3, 1940.

Hurley School

The Parent-Teacher Association of Hurley held its regular monthly meeting at the school house on Wednesday evening at which time the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Charles Relyea; first vice president, Mrs. Martin Oberkirch; second vice president, Mrs. Richard Wagner; secretary, Miss Anna May Baumgarten; and treasurer, Mrs. Mary Welhas. Installation of the officers will take place in June.

After the adjournment of the meeting the parents were invited by the teachers to view the exhibits of work done by the pupils during the year. Arranges Budget Plan Rafalowsky's Men's Shop on Central Broadway has added a budget plan for the further convenience of customers. Mr. Rafalowsky, who has been established in business since 1914, said this new plan would enable his trade to make their purchases of fine nationally advertised merchandise, in five convenient payments. He said that there is still a demand for a better grade of goods, and for those who want the best, and are unable to buy for cash, he has arranged a plan by which the customer could pay out of his income.

A survey conducted in 64 cities brought the consensus of opinion among experts that residential rents will go higher in most American cities during the year 1940.

Offer concessions to third powers which recognize it as the government of China. Secretary Hull has refused recognition, declaring that the new regime "has the appearance of a further step in a program of one country by armed force to impose its will upon a neighboring country."

Discriminate against the citizens of countries which refuse recognition. A state department notes to Tokyo charge that Japan has discriminated against Americans in the Japanese-occupied areas of China.

School Committee Will Investigate Evolution Charge

Following action taken by the Board of Education authorizing some inquiry into a recent statement that listed a teacher at the high school among those who are spreading views on "materialistic evolution" in the schools and colleges of the state, President Alfred Schmid on Thursday named a committee to investigate the matter.

Mr. Schmid named Trustees Bernard A. Feeney, Charles Katz and N. LeVan Haver to act with him. The committee will try to arrange a conference at an early date with the Rev. John B. Schulz of Mt. St. Alphonsus Seminary, whose remarks at a meeting of the Kingston Kiwanis Club on February 29 called attention to the question.

The committee will ask Father Schultz to give them any facts he may have regarding the matter and on which he based his statement.

Rummage Sale

The women of the Flatbush Reformed Church will hold a three-day rummage sale commencing Tuesday at 555 Broadway. The sale will open each day at 9 o'clock in the morning and close at 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

The party, composed of Coach G. W. Kias of the High School, Ernest Steuding, superintendent of public works, and Paul A. Zucca, chairman of the building committee of the common council, found everything in good shape, with the exception of the cinder path.

The cinder path, which had been left rolled down and in fine condition last fall, was found to be marked with ruts six inches or so in depth for its entire length. Apparently someone had driven an automobile from one end of the path to the other, with disastrous results.

General Meeting for Blossom Festival Saturday Afternoon

Final arrangements for the many activities connected with the coming Apple Blossom Festival will be made at a general meeting of representatives of the seven counties participating, to be held in Kingston Saturday.

The meeting will be held at the Governor Clinton Hotel and will be preceded by a luncheon at 12:30.

Chairmen of the various county committees will report on progress of Festival activities in their own counties and the meeting will coordinate the different plans into one harmonious whole.

Details to be settled at the meeting will be the selection of the Apple Blossom queen, the pageant which will mark the celebration, including the time at which the parade will start, and the like.

The local committee is co-operating with the American Legion in its home talent show to be given in the Municipal Auditorium on the night of May 1 and Ulster county's selection as contestant for the honor of queen of the seven counties will be made at that time.

Another matter to be discussed at Saturday's meeting is the fire and drum corps competition which the Legion is promoting and which will form part of the Apple Blossom Festival celebration on May 11. The Festival committee will do all in its power to help make this feature the success hoped for. As planned the competition will bring to Kingston some 15 to 20 fire and drum corps from this section of the state and will be a notable event.

Secretary Albert Kurdt said this morning that any interested in the plans for the Festival and the events connected with it will be welcomed at the meeting Saturday afternoon.

Strike Not Known By Baltz Factory

The following statement was made today by Mrs. Mabel Fisher, business agent for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union, Local No. 186, relative to the Baltz situation.

"Through a conference with Mr. Baltz today, it was learned that the work from the striking Kaylon, Inc., pajama factory in Baltimore was accepted by him without knowledge of the strike situation there. Mr. Baltz stated that he would not do the work, that it would either be returned to the Kaylon Company or held until the strike in Baltimore is settled."

MABEL FISHER, Business Agent.

Kerhonkson Union
School Activities

This week life is just one rehearsal after another as students prepare for the annual "Kerhonkson Hi Kapers" of 1940 which will be presented Friday evening at the high school auditorium at 8 o'clock. The show which is designed along the lines of a Broadway revue will include many of the activities which are carried on regularly in the school. In addition, the students will present an operetta, a one act play, a hill billy version of "Gone With the Wind," and many other fun provoking skits. William Atkins, Student Association president, reports that the tickets are "going like hot cakes."

Since it is impossible to seat more than 300 in the school auditorium, tickets will not be sold beyond that number. This is a show by students and for student benefit. More than 200 are taking part in the project; the proceeds from which will be used to support the 26 activities and clubs which are part of the school program.

With the advent of spring weather, pupils are eagerly looking forward to the annual program of outdoor sports. Girls will invite the Marlborough and Elenville High Schools to participate in play days, a type of activity recommended by the state department and inaugurated this year for the first time in the history of the school. Other activities will include soft ball, volley ball, and group games. Horse shoes are being added to the actual recreation program for both boys and girls and if student interest warrants it, this sport will be included in next year's actual intra-mural program. Director of Physical Education John C. Braun, expects that this year's hard ball league will be more successful than ever before. Approximately 100 boys have been signed up for this activity.

Education Night will be presented Wednesday evening, May 1, according to Principal Clifford L. Rall. At this time, the elementary pupils will offer an operetta under the direction of Music Supervisor

Charles F. Green. In addition, members of each class will conduct their parents through the various rooms showing them what has been accomplished during the current year. This program which was inaugurated last year proved very popular with the people of the community.

The regular meeting of the P.T.A. will be conducted Wednesday, April 10 and not April 3 as previously planned. At this meeting parents will be given an opportunity to attend classes and hear members of the faculty explain various features of the school program as it is running at the present time and also possibilities for the future. Officers for 1940-41 will probably be chosen from the following list of nominees which has been presented by the nominating committee: President, Mrs. Millard Davis, Theodore Goldman; vice president, Mrs. Clifford L. Rall, Mrs. Henry Decker; secretary, Mrs. Irving West, Mrs. Gross Schoonmaker; treasurer, Selah Terwilliger, Mrs. James Marquitt. For entertainment, Charles F. Green is planning to present a musical program and John Davenport will show movies in technicolor "American Panorama."

The Board of Education conducted its regular monthly meeting at the fire hall last Friday evening. President Maynard DeWitt presided. Other members present were: Percy Greene, A. J. Anderson, Harry Lane, Harry Terwilliger and Lorin Davis. The board awarded contracts to all members of the teaching staff and commended the fine spirit of loyalty and co-operation existing in the faculty. Next Wednesday evening, the board will attend the Ulster County School Trustees dinner meeting at the Hotel Stuyvesant in Kingston. The speaker for the occasion will be Assistant Commissioner of Education George M. Wiley. After settling various questions concerning school policies they adjourned to the school house where their picture was taken for the yearbook.

Inmate of Mental Asylum
Is Top-Notch Gag Writer

You can take it for what it's worth as a commentary on American humor, but a patient at the Colorado State Insane asylum contends that "to be a good gag writer, you should be in a mental hospital."

He proves it by selling ideas for cartoons and jokes to national magazines. So, some of those laughs you've been getting lately might have been inspired by a former newspaper man, who, hospital authorities said, was suffering from acute alcoholism.

Physicians at the state hospital said the man, whose name was withheld, is an example of rehabilitation and successful treatment possible in American asylums.

They said that the 35-year-old writer "cracked up" mentally when he began the excessive use of alcohol in what he said he thought was necessary to "make the great American effort."

The patient has written one book and is writing another. After receiving treatment here for a time, he resumed his writing, using a post office box address so that persons throughout the United States with whom he made contact would not know him to be a patient in a mental institution.

Doctors said he regularly writes 1,000 words a day on his novels. His gag-writing business so far has been the most profitable, they said. He sells his ideas to magazines and cartoonists. Attendants said that he often prepares 20 gags a day which may net two or three sales of $3 to $10 each.

The man also conducts a stamp exchange agency through a national monthly publication that has widespread distribution. It was said he has 400 regular customers for his stamps throughout the world.

First American Child
Virginia Dare is the name of the first white child born in America. Her mother was the daughter of John White, the governor of Virginia, sent over by Sir Walter Raleigh in 1587. Her father was one of the court of assistants. When White returned to England, the Dares remained in this country. Virginia died perished with them or was adopted by Indians.

Ulster Park-Port Ewen
WCTU Meeting Is Held

The Ulster Park-Port Ewen Women's Christian Temperance Union held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. George Berens of Port Ewen Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. S. T. Van Aken led the devotionals. The program included: Singing, "Stand Loyal"; Scripture reading, Luke, 8:5-15; Mrs. John Lynn led in prayer; roll call was answered by items from the Signal; Mrs. Ed Wheeler and Mrs. Beesmer gave a reading, "The Union Signal, Its Origin and History"; "Francis E. Willard Said;" by Mrs. C. Wells; singing, Lead On O Union Signal; readings, What State Presidents Think of Union Signal; a poem was read by Mrs. Etta Corbett, "Get Going Again"; singing, A Prayer; readings on Alcohol from the different states.

The resolutions on the life of our late member, Mrs. C. H. Fohemus, were read.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, and a social hour enjoyed by all.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Niece of Port Ewen.

'Factory' Education

The maximum desirable enrollment for any college is 400 students, according to Dr. William Wistar Comfort, retiring president of Haverford college at Haverford, Pa., and foe of "factory" education. "Four hundred students can get to know each other and live together more or less harmoniously," Dr. Comfort insisted. "But a school of 4,000 is almost inevitably a factory, with all the interplay of personalities lost." Contending that the nation has taken on such a big job of education that it has eliminated the personal relationship between student and teacher, Dr. Comfort pointed out, "you can only educate one person at a time."

Here's a Cure for Warts

Have you any warts? Then go mountain climbing in a thunderstorm. Leonard C. Chatwin, young scientist at the University of British Columbia, believes that electrolysis, caused by forks of invisible lightning striking the axes of the mountain climbers during a thunderstorm, will kill warts. Chatwin, member of the British Columbia Mountaineering club, described how, with a fellow member, he had been caught in a thunderstorm while scaling an 8,000-foot peak. Chatwin said that his partner, who had warts, lost them a week later.

Cost of Living in Italy

Up 30 Pct. Due to War

ROME.—The cost of living in Italy has increased approximately 30 per cent since the war started.

New increases in food and cigarette prices were ordered. A package of 20 foreign cigarettes, formerly 40 cents, now costs 50 cents. American cigarettes are rationed at the rate of not more than two packages a day to a person.

In addition to the price increases, a new 2 per cent receipts tax has been added. Domestic tobacco prices are up 12 1/2 per cent. Among the staple food products appearing twice daily on most Italian tables, there have been the following price increases: Bread, 3 per cent; olive oil, 6 per cent; sugar 12 1/2 per cent; coffee, 30 per cent; dried codfish, 6 1/2 per cent.

British Weddings Reach 40,000 in One Month

LONDON.—Forty thousand weddings a month, mostly war weddings, is the peak figure since the war. And thousands will be marrying now under the new scheme for cheap weddings and honeymoons for the troops. The registrar-general is suggesting that in necessitous cases soldiers shall be able to get married on leave by special license. Hotels all over the country are offering cheap honeymoons.

St. Louis, April 5 (AP)—A negro woman told a census taker the government would have to send Uncle Sam out himself if it wanted the answers to all those questions. Baffled by her stubbornness, the enumerator called the office, which sent out its ace trouble-shooter. The expert told the woman Uncle Sam was busy on another case. Satisfied, she answered.

● Keep sweet corn garden-fresh and tender for weeks after picking... keep peaches and blueberries at the peak of ripeness until needed... store meats, fish and fowl for a month if you wish, with an actual gain in tenderness!
● The roomy Freezing Locker guards food and flavor as never before... holds a bushel of ice cubes or 50 pounds of food at 22°-below-freezing temperature!
● No need for covered dishes! Sliced roast, cheese, even lettuce and celery, stay juicy-fresh right on the open shelves of the giant moist-cold compartment!
● NO DEFROSTING! Because there are no frost-collecting coils to steal natural moisture from foods!
● Amazing roominess is provided because there's nothing cutting shelves in two! You'll find room for as much food as in most refrigerators two sizes larger!
● No "ice box" odor in the Dual-Temp! It's eliminated by the new Sterilizer Ray that kills mold and bacteria, and keeps foods sweet-tasting and wholesome days longer!
